STURGIS LEADS IN BIG RACE

Thirty well built, ambitious youths started in the Brockton Fair Marathon this noon today. The start was made in front of the B. A. A. clubhouse on Exeter street. A big crowd of athletic followers turned out in order to see the men as they began their long run over hill and dale.

Little was known about the various men entered in the race. Few of them have competed in important long distant races before. It is therefore likely that some "dark horse" would forge to the front and cross the finish line in triumph.

At the firing of the starter's gun the men started off at a slow, even pace. Runners realized that they would have to take things easy during the first part of the race if they hoped to finish.

Weather Favored Runners.

The sun was not warm enough to roast the work of the different contestants, as rounds were also in good condition. A great crowd was expected to welcome the Marathon men as they entered the grounds at Brockton.

At the corner of Massachusetts and Huntington avenues, about one mile from the start, the runners were well bunched with William G. Fallon of N. D. A. in the lead.

Almost at his heels followed Anson K. Sturgis, his clubmate. Richard L. Hayes, also of the N. D. A. A., was third runner to turn the corner. Willie Galvin, a late entry, was fourth and Albert De Vere of Taunton fifth.

The runners were greeted by a big crowd, which included many school children, as they reached Edward Everett square. At this point Sturgis just managed to take the lead, with Charles Eaton of Taunton, second. Following Eaton came De Vere.

Runner Collapsed.

Mattapan square, which is about six miles out, was reached at 12:40. Sturgis was still in the lead. William Galvin of New York was second, followed by Albert Harrop of Fall River and C. F. Lucy, who were tied for third position.

Just after passing Mattapan square Dominic Vendetti collapsed. He was taken to an automobile and rushed to a near-by hospital.

At Howard street, Brockton, about a mile and a quarter from the fair grounds, Sturgis of the North Dorchester A. A., with William Galvin of Yonkers, N. Y., running a strong race, Sturgis leading by a few feet. Both runners were in good form and were running strong.

MAX GREENBAUM FAIL.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed today by Max Greenbaum of No. 9 Intervale street, a builder. His liabilities are $82,355, $50,760 secured.

BOOM STAHL FUND BY ATTENDING BIG BASEBALL BATTLE

Baseball "fans," attention!

Here is a great chance for you to help boom the Jake Stahl automobile fund. The speedy Somerville B. B. Club and the St. Eulalias of South Boston clash in a championship game at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon, the game starting at 2:45 o'clock.

John L. Sullivan, the former heavyweight champion of the world, will act as umpire. There's nothing slow about John as an umpire. What the old veteran does not know about the National Pastime is not worth knowing.

The admission fee is twenty-five cents.

All of the money taken in at the gate will be added to the Stahl auto fund. Therefore, you baseball "fans," be sure and attend.

Many "fans" will call at Fenway Park tomorrow in order to get their tickets for the World Series, and here's a tip—chip a quarter for the Stahl fund—and take in the game.

Honor the man who has put Boston on the baseball map.

Make it your business to go to Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon.

Remember three things: The time, 2:45 o'clock—the place, and the ante for the Stahl auto fund.

EXPECT CHANGES IN DIRECTORATES OF DOW COPPER COMPANIES

Changes in the directorate of some of the copper companies of which Stephen B. Dow, now charged with larceny of $146,000, was president, are reported to be in prospect.

An official of the so-called Dow properties said today, according to the Boston News Bureau:

"The assessments recently levied on Franklin and Indiana shares are beginning to come in, but no substantial payments are expected before the middle of the present month, when they are actually due.

"There will probably be some changes in the directorates of Lincoln, Indiana, Franklin and North Lake companies before long. It is possible interests associated with other Lake Superior properties may be given representations on the various Dow boards, but no overtures to the Lake Copper Company or any other company have thus far been made."

CANCEL GOLD ORDER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Kuhn Loeb & Co. have cancelled their recent engagement in London for shipment of $750,000 in gold.

T. R. DENIES ASKING FOR TRUST CASH

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Ex-President Theodore Roosevelt today presented to the Senatorial committee investigating campaign contributions evidence to refute charges that he had sought or accepted contributions from Standard Oil, E. H. Harriman and other financial interests in 1904, when he was elected to the Presidency. This evidence was in the form of letters written by Colonel Roosevelt, and produced today for the first time.

Colonel Roosevelt swore that he had never asked Harriman for a cent, and that he never heard of J. P. Morgan's $150,000 contribution until he read of it in the papers.

The Bull Moose admitted, however, that he had met John D. Archbold several times, and that he had the Oil Trust magnate as a guest at luncheon at his home at Oyster Bay. He testified that he had on several occasions invited trust leaders to the White House.

At the afternoon session of the committee Colonel Roosevelt was cross-examined. He admitted that he knew in 1904 that Henry C. Frick had contributed heavily to his campaign fund, but denied knowledge of any Gould contribution.

PRESENTS LETTERS TO COMMITTEE.

Senator Clapp called the committee to order at 10:02. Mr. Roosevelt was immediately called to the stand. The Colonel seated himself solidly in the big witness chair, glancing out over the packed committee room which hung breathless on his voice, and then in reply to a question from Senator Clapp as to his name, answered in a loud voice distinguishable in all part of the hall:

"Theodore Roosevelt."

Colonel Roosevelt immediately presented two letters hitherto unheard of, dealing with campaign contributions for the consideration of the committee. One was written to Treasurer Bliss in 1906 and the other to George R. Sheldon in 1908.

At the time he made his lengthy statement last month in answer to John D. Archbold's testimony, Colonel Roosevelt published a number of letters which he had written on the subject of contributions. At that time he said that these were all the letters he could discover, but the ones which he submitted to the committee today he subsequently found.

When he began his testimony he told who the officials of his campaign of 1904 were, and said his attention had been called to the testimony given by John D. Archbold.

Chairman Clapp asked him what he knew

HAYWOOD TOLD BY THE MAYOR TO GET OUT

LAWRENCE, Oct. 4.—Following a statement today by William D. Haywood, the I. W. W. organizer, that the I. W. W. will operatives will leave Lawrence if they can find work in other cities, Mayor Scanlon replied that Haywood and his followers should get out of the city as soon as possible.

"Tell Haywood and his followers," said Mayor Scanlon, hotly, "to get out just as soon as the Lord will let them and tell them also that I will furnish them with a special train."

General regret was expressed by Lawrence citizens this afternoon that any controversy should have started between the Mayor and the I. W. W. Patriotic citizens who gave expression to their feelings at the big mass meeting last night declared that the I. W. W. members should be urged to wear American flags along with the rest of the people of the city. Public-spirited citizens declared the I. W. W. members should be invited and urged to join in the big parade on Columbus Day. In this way, it is argued, the new arrivals from abroad could be imbued with the real American spirit.

Wears Flag as Cape.

John C. Needham, former alderman and former superintendent of streets, appeared with a large American flag thrown across his shoulders. Mr. Needham is six feet tall and weighs 220 pounds. He said:

"I got a call from City Hall to come down to the meeting with a flag. I looked around the house for a flag, but the only one I could find was one we got from the Boston AMERICAN some time ago. My wife thought it was too large. But I didn't.

"I threw it across my shoulders as a cape, and marched to City Hall and down the middle aisle to the front row. I got quite a hand.

"I did it to set an example for others. We have stood conditions here altogether too long. I hope to see the flag on every man, woman and child in Lawrence."

Exhaust Flag Supply.

So great was the demand for American flags today that the entire supply to be had in the city was soon exhausted. Hundreds of men, women and children and practically every city official and employe appeared on the streets today with small flags displayed on hat, coat or shirt waist.

MAY KEEP HULL STEAMERS ON BY LICENSE CHANGE

Efforts are being made today by the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company to have its service extended to November 1, changing the character of the licenses on its steamers, Old Colony, the ellity Allen and the Nantasket.

Early this afternoon Mayor Fitzgerald, at the request of the Boston AMERICAN, took a hand in trying to have the service continued until November 1, thereby giving the Summer residents of Hull a chance to remain at the beach almost a month longer.

Yesterday the AMERICAN printed exclusively the announcement that the Nantasket company would discontinue the service Monday.

Mayor Sends for Lane.

Mayor Fitzgerald sent for Frederic L. Lane, general manager of the line, and made several suggestions. The Mayor told Mr. Lane how the city had obtained for the Monitor a river license in place of a harbor and bay license.

Mr. Lane said today, "I expect to hear from the government authorities at any minute. I have applied for a different rating, which would allow the three boats now running to carry passengers enough to continue the service until November 1.

"We can run but three boats as we have stripped the other four of life saving apparatus in order to equip these three."

Captain James T. Hiain of the local State Inspection Service, said:

"We have under consideration a change in the character of the licenses of the three steamers to river boat licenses. Under the present licenses the Old Colony may carry 266 persons, the Betty Alden 376 and the Nantasket 402 inclusive of the crew. If the licenses are changed to river licenses the same boats may carry from 1,500 to 2,000 each.

Think Conditions Can Be Met.

"If the Nantasket Steamboat Company can navigate between their wharf in Boston and Nantasket in a way that the upper decks of their boats would be out of water and only keels resting on bottom in case they sunk they may have a river license."

It is the opinion on the water front that the company can meet these conditions.

Girls, Here's a Tip! Don't Ring Cow Bell in Street at Night

Judge Fallon decided in South Boston District Court today that a girl cannot ring a cow bell in the middle of a street late at night without disturbing the peace.

The fact that the girl, with others, was ringing in honor of a wedding is no excuse.

So His Honor fined Miss Barbara McSweeney, a striking brunette, $3. She appealed, and was held in $100.

Miss Barbara lives at No. 195 F street. Late Sunday night Patrolman Lynch and Sergeant Murphy, of Broadway station, heard the bell ringing.

They found Miss Barbara, surrounded by a score of girl friends, ringing the cow bell.

"What's the matter?" asked Lynch.

"Were returning from a wedding," replied Miss Barbara, with a laugh.

"You're disturbing the peace, too," said Lynch. "I guess we'll have to take you to the station house." Which he did. She was quickly bailed, but the police kept the bell.

and over 15,000,000 people have visited the Convict Ship. Why don't you? Now showing at Warren Bridge, near North Station; open daily from 9 A. M. to 10 P. M. Sunday from 1 to 10 P. M.

BLAME DEAD ENGINEER FOR WRECK

WESTPORT, Ct., Oct. 4.—Today's preliminary investigation into the wreck on the New York, New Haven & Hartford, in which seven persons were killed and two-score maimed, placed the blame on the shoulders of George L. Clarke, the engineer who was killed.

Bartley H. Gordon, foreman of a construction gang, under examination by Coroner Phelan, stated with emphasis that he believed the engineer was either dead or unconscious minutes before his train took the switch of the crossover, and charged that if the man was not he had deliberately skipped two danger signals set against him between 2,000 and 3,000 feet apart.

Every effort on the part of officials of the railroad had been made to bar news-

STURGIS WINS MARATHON.

A. K. Sturgis of the North Dorchester A. A. won the annual Brockton Fair Marathon today. Sturgis acquired an early lead and, although pressed hard by William Galvin of Yonkers, N. Y., he was in great form and stuck to his gait to the finish.

At a mile and a quarter from the finish Sturgis and Galvin were running very nearly even and it was one of the prettiest races ever seen in this annual grind. Galvin was second.

Sturgis' time was 2h. 39m. 8fbs.

ROOSEVELT GRILLED ON HARRIMAN FUND

of the allegations that Archbold had been requested to contribute to the Roosevelt campaign fund. The Colonel dived into his pocket, fished out a wad of letters and newspaper clippings, hastily ran through them, and selected two pieces of paper from them.

"Mr. Chairman, may I treat the letter I sent you as part of my answer?"

"Under your oath as a witness you may," answered Senator Clapp.

"I have two or three things to add to that letter."

"You may proceed," said the chairman.

Has Written 100,000 Letters.

"In the first place, gentlemen," said the Colonel, talking very fast, "since my election as Governor of New York, about fourteen years ago, I have written and signed about 100,000 letters, so that it is not possible at once to remember all of the letters I wrote on any given subject.

"Looking it rough my press books, in consequence of suggestions made to me, I find two other letters dealing with the subject of campaign contributions. One was a letter to Mr. Bliss, which has already been put before you, written some time in 1906. The other was a letter of mine to Mr. George R. Sheldon in 1908."

"Where are those letters?"

"Here is the original—here is the copy."

He rose and gave both documents to the chairman.

Colonel Reads Letters.

Senator Clapp then returned the copy to Colonel Roosevelt with a request to him to read them, which he did, as follows:

Oyster Bay, Sept. 21, 1904.

My Dear Sheldon—I have been informed that you or some one on behalf of the Republican National Committee has asked for contributions from H. H. Harriman or others connected with the large financial interests of Wall Street.

I wish to enter a protest against this. If such contributions have been received they must be returned. I also enter a protest against asking for contributions from men who are being prosecuted by the national government.

They must not be requested to contribute to the election of a President who will appoint an Attorney-General to continue their prosecution.

Roosevelt then read a letter to Sheldon dated October 27, 1904, in which he demanded that the $100,000 reported to have been contributed by the Standard Oil trust be returned. It read:

I know that we will not receive half as much as we did in 1900 and 1896. But every man shall have a square deal—not more, not less. If a corporation subscribes for the national welfare, well and good; but we cannot afford to accept aid from corporations to secure indemnity or contributions which will give the impression to the public that the contributors are securing such indemnity. The Standard Oil Company will receive just as much consideration under the present circumstances as if their contributions had been accepted.

Another letter which Colonel Roosevelt read and which was written just before President Taft's campaign, to George B. Cortelyou, said:

I consider it would be a great mistake to accept money from corporations which we intend to prosecute. It is our duty to retract any request, if such request has been made, and return what money has been received if any has been received. The acceptance of money from corporations now under investigation by the administration would injure the Taft campaign. I shall send a copy of this letter to Mr. Taft.

Colonel Roosevelt added:

"On the day after my letter of October 27, 1904, to Mr. Sheldon, I dictated an answer belonging to George B. Cortelyou, which read:

"Greatly desire that request in my letter of yesterday be complied with."

After this statement Colonel Roosevelt arose from the witness chair, and waving a heavily bound volume before the committee, snapped out:

Asked About Other Letters.

"These are the originals, gentlemen, of the letters to Senator Bourne, of which I sent you copies. Do you wish to compare them?"

"I don't think so," replied Senator Clapp.

The remainder of the committee were silent.

Then Senator Clapp asked:

"Are there any other letters or documents which are in your possession?"

"No, there is none, as far as I can recall. I have been over the various documents with Loeb, and I can find no further letters or documents of any kind relating to this campaign. At the same time my letter to Sheldon was forgotten by me, and I do not remember writing it now. It may be possible, but I do not think probable, that there are other letters in existence. Loeb reminded me of the Bliss letter, which I did not recall.

Q.—In regard to the Harriman fund? A.—Would you be willing to look up these contributions in succession?

"Yes, that will be satisfactory."

"But, taking up the contributions," the Colonel continued, "I would like to say that there is no testimony against me except hearsay evidence, the statements of men who are dead. Senator Penrose and John D. Archbold have furnished indirect evidence. The testimony of others is what they heard Harriman, who is dead, say.

"The testimony of Mr. Odell and the other men as to the Harriman fund is testimony as to what they heard Harriman had said, and Harriman is dead. I have never cared to bring in my secretary when I was President in a case like this, but in view of the statements made and in view of the implied intention of the committee to call Mr. Loeb I decided that, inasmuch as Mr. Loeb would have to testify, I would also state what was done through Mr. Loeb in regard to the Harriman matter. Now may I speak about a letter published in Hearst's Magazine, from Congressman Sibley. Have you seen it, gentlemen?"

The Sibley Letter.

"I think we have all seen it," said the chairman.

"I have not seen it," said Senator Paynter.

"Well," said Roosevelt, "it is a letter which in substance states that Mr. Sibley came down to see me about seeing Mr. Archbold, and that I said I would be delighted—delighted,' and asked Mr. Sibley to bring Mr. Archbold to the White House.

"I don't remember any conversation with Mr. Sibley in which Archbold's name was mentioned. I do remember that Sibley came on two or three occasions about the Standard Oil Company, and he may have brought up Archbold's name. I certainly didn't volunteer to ask him to bring Archbold down to see me."

Several times William Loeb, Jr., leaned over and coached his former chief.

"I remember Senator Bourne asking me to see Archbold," continued Roosevelt, "and I saw him with Bourne on several occasions, and on one occasion in my home at Oyster Bay he brought Archbold to lunch so that if Sibley did ask me to see Archbold I could truthfully answered him as he says I did.

"While I was President, if any man, trust magnate, labor leader, Socialist, prize fighter or any other man had any business with me and wanted to see me, I always saw him and if I thought there was anything to be gained from the standpoint of the public service in seeing a man, then without waiting for him to ask I would send for him.

"If I am elected President, if Mr. Rockefeller or anyone else wants to see me, I will see him, and if ever I have anything to ask in connection with the public service of Mr. Rockefeller or Gompers, or Mitchell, or J. Pierpont Morgan, I will send for him myself and ask him about it.

During my term of service as President it happened that I didn't send for any representative of the Standard Oil on my own initiative; it always was at the request or somebody. But I did send for several trust magnates.

"I sent for Marvin Hughitt on three or four occasions. I sent for and invited to the White House Jim Hill. I think I sent for J. P. Morgan, in connection with currency legislation. At this moment some of the same newspapers that were carrying comments on the reports that I sent for Archbold are also commenting that I sent for a Socialist, Brunyes, to help me draw up my platform. As regards the Socialists they are right.

"I have always acted," continued the former President, biting off his words in a typically Roosevelt manner, "and always shall act in the assumption that if there be any man from whom I can gain any information I shall send for him.

"During my term of office in the White House I sent for trust magnates, labor leaders, Socialists, John L. Sullivan, Battling Nelson and Dr. Lyman Abbott. I don't exactly remember the reasons for the visits of Sullivan and Nelson, but there was some question of public policy they wanted straightened out."

This sally caused laughter.

"If at any time my virtue is so frail that it cannot stand meeting the trust magnates, I shall immediately get out of public life," said the ex-President.

Roosevelt then passed on to the subject of the Harriman visits, stating that "he could see no reason why anyone with common sense could question anything about Mr. Harriman's letters or visits."

As to "Practical Men."

The witness then called attention to the letter of October 14, 1904, written by himself to Mr. Harriman, which contained the expression, "You and I are practical men."

"Any one," said Roosevelt, with an emphatic slap of his knee, "who confounds practicality with baseness is a person whose moral status is so warped that he could not recognize practicality if he met it. This letter was a clear statement that I had nothing of immediate interest to see Mr. Harriman about, and that what I wanted to tell him might just as well have been postponed until after the election. Mr. Loeb told me that Mr. Hard man wanted to see me about the New York State campaign.

"Through Mr. Loeb I made an appointment with Mr. Harriman at his own request. Mr. Loeb was present during all or most of the interview. There was no misunderstanding during that meeting. I say this because I have seen statements from well-meaning but rather flabby individuals that there was a misunderstanding between Mr. Harriman and myself. I repeat there was nothing of this kind.

"Mr. Harriman stated that he had borne so much of the expense of the State campaign that he could bear no more and that he had to have help. Mr. Loeb subsequently called up other Bliss or Cortelyou and told them of this and they took care of it."

Offered Depew Venezuela.

The witness then passed on to a discussion of Harriman's alleged wish to have Chauncy Depew appointed ambassador to France. The former President said that as soon as he told the railroad magnate that he wanted to send James H. Hyde to France the railroad magnate "backed water" and did not push the Depew matter. The efforts to get Senator Depew appointed as a minister amused Colonel Roosevelt greatly. He yanked off his glasses and replaced them with a heavy pair of bone spectacles. Then looking over the committee, he said: "I offered him (Depew) Venezuela, which he would not take."

The witness doubled over with laughter, in which the spectators joined. Continuing, Colonel Roosevelt said:

"The fund which was supposed to have been raised by Harriman was in reality raised by Mr. Bliss. Odell, Bliss and Sheldon all stated that the fund was raised by Bliss to help Harriman in his state campaign. Loeb was present at my conversation with Harriman and heard all that passed between him and myself. There is not one shred of truth in the Harriman statement that I asked him to help me. He asked me to help him in his State campaign.

"I never asked Harriman directly or indirectly for one cent for any campaign in which I was concerned.

"During our conversation—the one I have referred to—Mr. Harriman told me that the Republican campaign people had plenty of money. I told him that I knew nothing about that. Then he made his request that I should ask the National Campaign Committee to give him money for the State campaign. I asked Loeb to

"Big Business" Serves to Save

Money for Men Who Buy Clothing at White's

The cost of "doing business" is added to the cost of merchandise.

So, if you buy of the small dealer with big expenses on limited sales, you must pay his big expenses.

Great volume is what enables White's to get the highest class of tailoring and sell at less expense.

Department Store profits, again, are smaller than clothiers' profits, so that makes another reduction in the cost to you.

SUITS AT $12.50 to $27.50

Our ability to give men most suit value, at any price, has been so repeatedly impressed on the great majority of Boston's best dressers that they instinctively turn to White's when the "new suit" question comes up. We are prepared even to make more favorable impressions this Fall.

At $12.50 to $27.50 we show you many exclusive woolens and dorings, tailored to the highest standard of highest class makers. Showing ALL the different models of ALL the best makers, we are prepared, as no other store is, to please you exactly in all LITTLE details that make such a BIG difference to you.

At these prices we show suits in fancy worsteds, velours, worsted cheviots and cassimeres, also blue serges, black undressed worsteds and neat silk mixtures in correct and attractive designs and shades for men and young men.

TOP COATS AT $12.50 to $25.00

"Warmth without weight" fittingly expresses the Overcoat tendency for this season. Adaptations from English styles lend charm to many models. Many popular styles will be cut strictly on progressive American lines. The materials give a "good-natured" tone. Rough effects are pleasing in lambs' wool, Shetlands, tweeds and rough cheviots, showing soft brown, blue and gray tones and nobby mixture effects. Plain or raglan shoulders, patched or bellow pockets. The different models of several makers enable us to fit your form, your personality, your pocketbook, far more satisfactorily than it is possible for any other Boston store to do.

ROOSEVELT DENIES ASKING FUNDS

call Cortelyou or Bliss and make the request, which he did. In this connection, I would like to call attention to the repeated misstatements of what I said. I never made the statement that no corporation contributed to the Republican fund in 1904. If you will turn to my published open statements you will find I said there specifically: 'Contributions to the Republican party, as contributions to the Democratic party, are not the question at issue.' In the statement of Alton B. Parker it was charged that the Republican party secured its contributions by blackmail.

Defends Contributions.

"In my statement I said 'The questions of the use of improper threats or promises by recipients of contribution is at issue.' The denial is that any contribution was obtained by any improper promises or threats. I got the assurance of Loeb and Bliss before I made a denial of this charge.

"I call your attention to the fact that at the time it was legal for corporations to contribute. I also want to call your attention to the testimony taken by the legislative insurance investigating committee, given by John C. McCall, as to the contributions made by his company to the Republican campaign fund. He gives his reasons why he believed it to be in the interests of his policyholders to act as he did.

"McCall testified that in 1904 'My life was made weary by Democratic candidates chasing me for money during the campaign.'"

Roosevelt referred again to Harriman and Archbold and said:

"I wish to call your attention to the fact that Archbold and Harriman testified that they got no improper consideration from the administration. Mr. Archbold and Mr. Harriman alike complained not that the administration did what it ought not to have done, but that the administration did not give them anything."

Then the colonel snapped: "That's true. I do not believe that either Cortelyou or Bliss tried to blackmail the Standard Oil or John D. Archbold. I specifically instructed that no contributions be received from this source and I place no credence in the report that the Standard Oil was blackmailed in the least particle.

"I had no way of being hostile to the corporations if they obeyed the law. I could only oppose them if they broke the law. Then I could hit them and hit them hard.

"Should Throw Penrose Out."

"If when I was police commissioner of New York city any policeman had admitted that he had tried to force contributions for future immunity, I would have fired him off the force, sock and crop. And I believe that the Senate should throw Mr. Penrose out for his open admissions on the floor of the Senate."

The colonel called attention to the statements made by John D. Archbold that "No treatment in darkest Abyssinia can equal that handed to the Standard Oil Company by Theodore Roosevelt."

"It is perfectly true," the colonel grinned, "that during my administration I administered the Abyssinian treatment to the Standard Oil Company, because that company needed it.

"If I am ever President again I will administer the same treatment again, but I could do better next time with a law which would let me get at the corporations."

The former President then denied specifically that, as testified by Archbold, "Bliss had no influence with him" (Roosevelt).

"I had the greatest confidence in Mr. Bliss, and he had great influence with me, but" (pounding his knee "neither Mr. Bliss nor any man living could influence me in favor of a corporation or as individual who broke the laws. There I was, and am, adamant.

"I had had my brush with the Standard Oil Company, and they knew what I had done and what I intended to do. None of my associates ever told me or hinted to me that Mr. Morgan had contributed to my campaign and I was very much surprised to read in the papers yesterday that Mr. Morgan had given us anything at all. I had thought that the Stanley committee considered that my actions during my first necessity of contributing to my fund."

Colonel's Collar Wilts.

Colonel Roosevelt was so emphatic in making his statements that his collar soon wilted down and his face was red and perspiring. He stopped in his long discussion to pay tribute to Cornelius N. Bliss for his disinterested labors in behalf of the party. Roosevelt then passed on to the subject of the Chicago convention and the bribery of negro delegates there.

"Senator Clapp," snapped Roosevelt, "has any reference been made to the charge that money was used improperly on my behalf in Chicago?"

"Not before this committee," replied Clapp.

"Well, I want to say that I told the men working for me at the Chicago convention that under no condition would I stand for any effort to get a single delegate for me by the use of money, patronage, or any other consideration. I never heard of any charge except that made against Ormsby McHarg. Here are two letters I want to submit."

He read a letter he wrote to McHarg asking for a denial of the charge and the reply to that letter containing the requested denial. Colonel Roosevelt then launched into a speech, in which Biblical quotations were numerous.

Wants Hilles Called.

He appealed to the committee to summon Charles B. Hilles and Representative Bartholdt before the committee to sustain their accusation or "He driven out of public life." "Thou shalt not steal" and "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor" were the principal portions of the decalogue used by the witness.

"To offend against the latter is as bad as to offend against the former," shouted Roosevelt. He then lectured the committee, crying, "I want—I feel—I think," until Senator Clapp had to remind him that the committee could "think" and "feel" for itself. Colonel Roosevelt said: "If Hilles and Bartholdt can prove their assertions I want to know it. If they cannot they should be driven out of public life.

"Now I want to say that the witnesses who have testified thus far all seem to describe the campaign funds of the Progressive party. You see I've got to buck both parties, and——" Here Senator Paynter interrupted and said:

"I think it will be very proper at this juncture to have Senator Clapp tell you what he has done."

Rebuked by Clapp.

Refusing to be turned aside by Senator Clapp, who twice attempted to explain, the Progressive leader demanded that McAdoo, McCombs, Charles R. Crane and Charles P. Taft be subpoenaed at once. Meekly criticised the committee for what he termed its "hesitation in calling witnesses other than those antagonistic to the Progressive party."

After having tried to break into the Colonel's talk three times without success, Chairman Clapp said:

"I realize that it is a waste of the

NEW ENGLAND'S GREAT CASH HOUSE

SECOND SATURDAY SALE

Furniture, Bedding, Rugs, Upholstery Goods, Etc

We fully appreciate many of the difficulties that attend the efforts of husband and wife, when a Monday shopping trip is planned. Monday is the day when man's work begins, and in many of our mills and factories the week ends on Saturday at 12 o'clock. This is why we plan a special series of sales for Saturday that will put our low prices within reach of all. We will not advertise these goods in the Sunday papers at lower prices, and you will feel assured when you buy on Saturday that you're buying as low as at any sale announced throughout the week. We believe that we have as fine line of furniture and bedding, upholsteries and carpets, pictures and wall paper as is shown in any store in New England. A visit will convince you of this fact.

¶ Style Leadership the Lure of Georges Model Clothes.

¶ Those who regard clothes merely as a necessity are seldom attracted to Georges. My store and my model clothes make their appeal to the man of higher than ordinary tastes.

Why? — because the unique character of my sources of supply permits me to offer styles just about a season in advance of readymades.

Georges Model Clothes are designed and fashioned by some of the cleverest custom style creators in America, including many of Fifth Avenue fame. I am showing this season new Americanized English ideas in both single and double-breasted, two, three and four-button, soft roll sacks, also new medium weight London Guard Coats (skeleton made), both plain and belted backs, etc., etc.—in the latest two-tone fabrics, patterns and colors that will be brought out in ordinary ready-mades NEXT season as entirely new.

My prices range $12 to $35—no premium being charged for style newness. And should alterations be necessary to perfect the fit of any garment, my master tailormen make them without extra cost.

¶ My Supremacy in RAINCOATS

While this is not a specialty Raincoat Store, the aggregate outlet of my five great stores makes me one of the largest Raincoat retailers in the United States, and makes possible values that no other store could afford to give. My Raincoat stock embraces models for men and women in every imaginable good fabric of imported and domestic weave at $5 to $25. A most complete showing of famous English imported Mandelbergs at $15 to $25. Every Raincoat I sell carries the Georges Guarantee, back of which is a business established since 1879.

ROOSEVELT WOULD OUST PENROSE FROM SENATE

precious years of a man's life on this earth to answer criticism, but I will say that whatever was done this week as to witnesses was done by me and not by my associates."

Senator Clapp is himself a Progressive.

"I want others called," cried Roosevelt.

"If the committee arrives, and at present it has no premonitory symptoms of approaching dissolution, we shall call everyone who can give us light on the question of Taft campaign contributions," retorted Chairman Clapp ironically.

At 11:53 Colonel Roosevelt said:

"I have finished my statement."

Then he took a long breath and started on a resume of his denial that any conditions were tied to the contributions to his campaign fund.

At this point the committee took a recess.

Colonel Cross-Examined.

Ex-President Roosevelt was cross-examined at this afternoon's session of the Clapp committee. Senator Oliver was first accorded the privilege of questioning the Colonel, but he yielded to Senator Paynter.

Q.—You said this morning that you had no intimation of Morgan's contribution to the 1904 fund until it was testified to yesterday, but you didn't say anything about the contribution of George J. Gould or Henry C. Frick. It was testified to by Mr. Sheldon yesterday that both of these gentlement contributed $100,000 each.

A.—I know nothing whatever of any contribution by Mr. Gould until now. Mr. Frick I knew had contributed heavily, but I don't know to what amount. He offered to contribute more heavily still. Mr. Knox told me that Mr. Frick was one of my strongest champions.

Q.—In your letter of October 27 you ask that the Standard Oil fund be returned without further delay. Did you suspect that there was delay? A.—I knew nothing about it.

Q.—And your subsequent telegram said: "Has my request been complied with? I wish no delay."

A.—It was difficult for me to get an answer. I wished the matter attended to at once."

Q.—Do you know whether a Standard Oil contribution was made? Only the other day Cortelyou informed me that Bliss said no such contribution had been made. I had heard from one or two sources that Bliss said he had received one contribution from an individual who was connected with the Standard Oil Company and other interests.

Two Contributions Returned.

Q.—Did you know of the "rules" governing the subscription? A.—Only that there were to be no contributions with strings to them and no expenditures of any money for corruption or other illicit purposes. I know of two contributions being returned by Mr. Cortelyou. One was the gift, quite a large one, made by a gentleman whose name I don't know, and who mentioned that he would like to be considered in reference to a mission to Belgium. The other was a contribution of the Tobacco Companies, against which a case was pending in the courts.

Q.—What do you understand by an "implied understanding" between the corporations and the national committee? A.—Such language as Mr. Archbold used to the committee.

Q.—That is no answer.

A.—Oh, yes it is, my dear sir. Any language of this kind would have shown that the Standard Oil Company expected some return for their money and the contribution would have been immediately returned. We were not taking in contributions with provisions attached.

WHAT T. R. SAID:

There is no testimony against me except in the form of hearsay evidence.

I saw John D. Archbold with Senator Bourne on several occasions, and on one at my house in Oyster Bay he brought Archbold to lunch.

During my term of office I sent for trust magnates, labor leaders, Socialists, John L. Sullivan, Battling Nelson and Dr. Lyman Abbott.

I never asked Harriman for one cent for any campaign in which I was concerned.

The fund supposed to have been raised by Harriman was in reality raised by Mr. Bliss.

I was very much surprised to read in the papers yesterday that Mr. Morgan had given us anything at all.

During my administration I administered the Abyssinian treatment to the Standard Oil Company, because that company needed it.

I believe that the Senate should throw Mr. Penrose out.

—From Roosevelt's testimony before Clapp committee

PARDON PETITION FILED IN BEHALF OF MRS. CUSUMANO

Thomas J. Grady, attorney for Mrs. Lena Cusumano, who is serving a life sentence in the woman's prison at Sherborn for the murder of her husband, Frank Cusumano, at Hull, and for which crime Enrico Mascolito was electrocuted at Charlestown, today filed a petition with Governor Foss asking for the absolute pardon of the woman. The petition states that the pardon is asked "because we believe she is innocent of the crime of murder." Governor Foss was in Brockton when the petition was presented, and it was received by the Governor's secretary, John C. Sherman.

MAN THROWS SELF UNDER HORSE'S FEET

Tony Caplan of Salem threw himself in front of a two-horse dray on Merchants row today in what the police call an attempt at suicide, but escaped with a broken jaw and bruised hip. Caplan is twenty-eight. One horse kicked him in the face, breaking his jaw, and the other horse stopped on one of his hips. Caplan's wounds were treated at the Relief Hospital. Then he was sent to the Psychopathic Hospital on Kerwood road for examination as to his sanity.

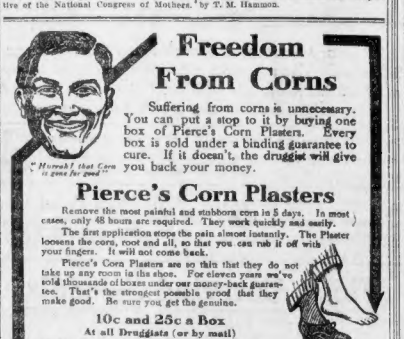
DORCHESTER RATS START $1,000 FIRE

Rats and matches in the attic of the house at No. 31 Florida street, Dorchester, caused a fire today. The roof was entirely burned off, and numerous articles stored in the attic were ruined. The damage was $1,000. The house is owned and occupied by T. M. Hannon.



Freedom From Corns

Suffering from corns is unnecessary. You can put a stop to it by buying one box of Pierce's Corn Plasters. Every box is sold under a binding guarantee to cure. If it doesn't, the druggist will give you back your money.

Pierce's Corn Plasters

Remove the most painful and stubborn corn in 5 days. In most cases, only 48 hours are required. They work quickly and surely.

The first application stops the pain almost instantly. The Plaster loosens the corn, root and all, so that you can rub it off with your fingers. It will not come back.

Pierce's Corn Plasters are so thin that they do not take up any room in the shoe. For eleven years we've sold thousands of boxes under our money-back guarantee. That's the strongest possible proof that they make good. Be sure you get the genuine.

ADMIT BOSTON 'NEWSIE' TO BAR

Harry E. Burroughs, a Boston newsboy, was admitted to the Suffolk Bar with other successful candidates today.

Burroughs adds one to the lengthening list of Boston "newsies" who have won their way to business or professional ranks after a long, tough fight.

Like the other newsboys who have prospered in other lines, he says:

"Selling newspapers is an experience worth while—the lessons learned in newspaper life no school could have taught me."

Up to last week Burroughs was selling papers. Then he was notified that he had successfully passed the bar examination. He prepared to quit his paper trade and set up in law—a goal for which he had worked and sacrificed and dreamed.

Lawyers the Big Men.

Burroughs decided to study law after thinking over his various customers. Among his daily patrons have been clerks, business men, lawyers, laborers—all sorts.

Burroughs made up his mind that lawyers are the big men in the community.

"I will be a lawyer," he said.

He began to study as best he could to fit himself for law school. Finally, after much labor, he was able to enter the Suffolk Law School. Then followed a long, hard stretch of selling papers and studying law—a hitherto combination.

Finally Burroughs was fitted for his law examinations, passed the test and was ready to be qualified as a member of the bar. He will practice law with Edward H. Savery of No. 47 Court street, where he has been getting office experience while at law school.

Of his life as a "newsie" and his lessons from life so far, Burroughs says:

What He Says.

"Selling newspapers is an experience worth while. The lessons I learned in newspaper life no school could have taught me.

"Without politeness and honesty, no man can hope to succeed. Politeness wins customers, honesty retains them."

One must be always "on the job," for competition here is at its ripest. There is no room for the lazy fellow. At 100 degrees in the shade, or 10 degrees below zero, he must be at his post.

Among my customers I was fortunate enough to include people from all walks of life. This forced me to adapt myself to the peculiarities of widely differing classes.

The combined teaching of all this experience together with the self sacrifice, and self study which was forced upon me, enabled me to struggle, with some degree of success, against ever present obstacles. I love opposition for it always stirs me to greater effort.

"BRYN MAWR IS NO MARRIAGE BUREAU"

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—When Bryn Mawr College opened, President M. Carey Thomas told the young women that "girls who are idlers and have entered the institution for an American good time or because their family physician have advised that Bryn Mawr is a cure for nervous girls or thinking they might find husbands had better stop before they begin, for they will be weeded out, and speedily too, as the college is not the place they are looking for."

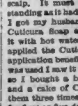
$6,000 FIRE LOSS IN VALLEY FALLS

VALLEY FALLS, R. I., Oct. 4.—A fire of unknown origin early today in the A. E. Bullock & Co. plant destroyed four horses, several small buildings, and drove a score of people into their homes from the surrounding dwellings. The loss was $6,000. The flames spread to a pile of 100 tons of coal. This is still burning. Eight horses in a stable adjoining the building where the fire started were saved.

RINGWORM ON CHEEK AND BEHIND EAR

Running Into Scalp. Hot and Itching. Scales Formed. Had to Cut Hair. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured in Two Weeks.



Somerville, N. J. — "My daughter's ringworm was quite obstinate. First a red spot appeared on her cheek and another just behind the ear, running into her scalp about the size of a dime. They were hot and itching. Scales formed and caused her to scratch, which made it inflamed and sometimes drew the blood. I tried —— and —— and —— salve, but it kept growing. I had to cut the hair from the ringworm that was in the scalp. It must have been of two weeks' standing as it had grown to a good size, when I got my husband to get me a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I washed it with hot water and Cuticura Soap then applied the Cuticura Ointment. The first application benefited her. When my sample was used I saw it was not so large and angry, so I bought a box of Cuticura Ointment, and a cake of Cuticura Soap and applied them three times a day. The constant use for four or five days checked its growth and in two weeks more she was entirely cured. Cuticura Soap and Ointment also cured my son in two weeks of a case of ringworm." (Signed) Mrs. A. E. Neville, Dec. 19, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold throughout the world. A single set is often sufficient. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

FOR RESULTS ADVERTISE YOUR WANTS IN THE BOSTON AMERICAN.

GREAT CONTEST WEATHER THIS!

Indian Summer.

This is the time to put a little extra energy into your campaign for the ten thousand dollars in cash offered by the Sunday AMERICAN.

Many contestants will grow listless now. There comes a feeling at this season not unlike that "fever" of the Springtime, when all of us want to "let Hill do it."

This is your time to be more diligent. This is the time to pile your votes up so high that when the standing is published for the first time your lead will be formidable.

While there are 1,500 prizes to be distributed at the end of this greatest of voting contests—three hundred of them for each of five districts, in addition to the one capital prize—everybody in the contest should make the ten thousand dollars his goal.

You often hear it said that there is no longer opportunity in New England, that one has to "go West, nowadays," to get a real start.

This is ridiculous.

There is opportunity everywhere in New England for the man who has A LITTLE CAPITAL.

The man must be blind who visits cities like Fitchburg, Worcester and Springfield, or towns like Westfield—to mention a very few places near at hand in Massachusetts—and who STUDIES these communities, without seeing opportunity on every hand.

"All very well," you say, "but where do we get the 'little capital.'"

Many who men will say that you can get it by frugality, by saving, by watching the leaks, by regular deposits in the savings bank, by avoiding the cost of high living.

And all this advice will be good.

Here in the Sunday AMERICAN voting contest, however, is your opportunity to win TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS IN CASH.

By safe investments in New England—where you can see your money at work—you can in a few years make each use of this capital that your wealth must be written in six figures.

And you can win this ten thousand dollars by industry.

Get a friend to take the Sunday AMERICAN for six months. This means 1,500 votes. Another friend subscribes for twelve months. This means 3,500 votes. Or the subscription term may be thirty-six months, equivalent to 7,500 votes.

The plan is readily understandable by the youngest. Among the brightest competitors, indeed, are boys and girls who want to go to college and at the same time do something for father and mother.

If you enroll today your Enrollment Ballot—you will find this in the big advertisement printed elsewhere—will be worth your first 600 votes. After Sunday this ballot will count for only 400 votes.

And one thing more:

The Special Offer—a gift of 5,000 votes for every TEN subscriptions—positively expires at 10 o'clock tomorrow night.

This race is still in its infancy. The winner, it may be, has not yet enrolled.

Enroll today, you who read these words, or be sorry forever after that you missed your chance to win ten thousand dollars in cash

PACKERS START BUTTER CORNER

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Butter, now two cents higher than at this time last year, may go as high as the record-breaking price of 1911. The packers are said to be behind the deal to corner the market. Supplies are 12,000,000 pounds greater than last year, as shown by the monthly report on cold storage stocks, showing how the butter is being stored up.

"For the last two or three months," says a commission man, "brokers acting for the larger packers—Armour, Swift, Hammond and others—have been quietly traveling through the country contracting for the output of creameries at much better premiums than the commission man is able to pay, with result that the most of the supply is now in the control of these interests.

Wellesley 'Factotums' Chosen; Are Littlest Girls in Their Class

"Millie' Muchmore and Dorothy Ridgeway have been chosen "factotums" of the Senior class at Wellesley.

Each, according to the traditions of the office, is a tiny girl, "cute," and generally beloved of the class.

The factotums are a Wellesley institution. Each class has them. Last year Grace Richman and "Doc Jee" Henderson, who played Titania and Puck in the Senior play, were the Senior factotums.

The factotums run errands at the class meetings, collect and count ballots, open and shut windows to suit the taste of the class members, carry notes and flowers to the platform, and make themselves generally useful. They are, in fact, simply "factotums."

Wellesley custom decrees that they must be the very tiniest and daintiest and "nicest" and cutest girls in the class. The tradition failed just once, when the tallest and slenderest girl in the class ran, and won, with a "littlest" one as her mate.

Millie (Milwood) Muchmore, is a class favorite and has been through her four years. Miss Ridgeway is something on crew and equally well liked.

Triplets Twice and Twins Once, Born in Webster in One Day

WEBSTER, Oct. 4.—Old Dr. Stork's aeroplane broke down over Webster yesterday and his cargo of babies came tumbling down wholesale. Three fell to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Obuchowski of No. 33 Granite street, and three to Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Strdiers of No. 142 Slater street. Twins were born to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wather of Lake street.

Mr. and Mrs. Obuchowski have been twice the parents of twins before.

BOSTON COLLEGE, '15, ELECTS OFFICERS

WHICH IS THE SAFER?

RAW ? PASTEURIZED

The death-rate from tuberculosis exceeds the combined deaths from war, famine, plague, cholera, yellow fever and small-pox.

About 25% of all cows have tuberculosis, and the best authorities agree that a certain proportion of the cases of tuberculosis in children is caused by unsafe milk.

GOES TO AVENGE SLAIN KINFOLK

Dr. Levon G. Hagopian of Lynn is preparing to start for Turkey to avenge the death of his father and brother, slain in a feud there.

Dr. Hagopian, who has an office at No. 341 Washington street, Lynn, yesterday received a cable from an American mission stating that his father and brother had been killed. Dr. Hagopian's mother was brutally murdered in a massacre in the country about sixteen years ago.

The murder of his father and brother leaves destitute two sisters and a young brother, the last of his family, who are now in danger of meeting a similar fate.

His native town is Chapas, nearly on the border lines of Persia, Russia and Turkey.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRIBON.

For the first time since its inception, in 1905, the Glidden Tour has this year been abandoned. This abandonment comes, too, at a time when, according to the press reports sent out by the recognized press agents of the American Automobile Association, a record list of entries had been received.

The excuse given is rather a peculiar one, inasmuch as it says that "owing to the great interest in politics many of the prospective contestants do not desire to be away from home." Two weeks ago the excuse for the postponement of the date of the start was poor roads; now it is politics.

Why would it not be a good idea for the committee in charge of affairs to have come out with the true facts in the case and state what everybody believes is the cause of the abandonment—lack of entries? That is the real reason in the minds of many why the committee has taken this step. The manufacturers as a whole have this year paid but little attention to the tour.

It seems too bad that the Glidden Tour should be given up entirely, as in the past it has performed valuable service in the cause of motoring. There is every reason to believe that it could have been made a success in 1912. Had the route of the tour been other than the one selected there is no question but a great many private owners would have competed. It is not now too late to transfer the contest to a section of the country wherein a number of private owners could be induced to enter and make a pleasure tour through the country districts for the possession of the trophy for the coming year.

DOROTHY HANCOCK DESCENDANT TO WED DR. E. L. YOUNG, JR.

Friends of Miss Charlotte Elizabeth Wales, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Quincy Wales of No. 93 Olney street, Dorchester, are today congratulating her on her engagement to Dr. Edward L. Young, Jr., of Commonwealth avenue. Miss Wales on the paternal side is a direct descendant of Dorothy Quincy Hancock, famous in revolutionary days.

Dr. Young is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1906, and later of the Harvard Medical School. He is house officer at the Massachusetts General Hospital. He had charge, as advisory physician, of the Harvard crew at New London last year.

SICKLES SUED ON $8,000 NOTES

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The dimming sight of the ancient negro butler who served General Daniel E. Sickles for two-score years, prevented him from observing anything unusual in the appearance of two A. D. T. boys who rang the bell at No. 23 Fifth avenue.

"Message for General Sickles," said the spokesman of the two.

"Give it to me, boys. I'll take it to the general," replied the butler.

"Can't do it. Got to get the general to sign our receipt book himself, See."

"Well, the general does give me orders for nobody to be let up, but I guess this is all right. Come ahead," and the old negro led the way into the library, where his aged master sat in conversation with his housekeeper, Miss Eleanor Earle Wolmerding.

In the quaint old room were curios which generally arrest the attention of the visitor at first sight. But the two "messengers" gave not a glance at them. The largest of the two stepped forward and thrust the papers into the general's hands.

Serve Papers by Ruse.

"Papers in a suit to collect $8,000 on promissory notes, held by August Belchcher, of No. 865 Fifth avenue," said the "boy," politely. General Sickles and Miss Wilmerding became very angry.

"I knew you would be tricked again," shouted Miss Wilmerding as she ordered the two "messengers" from the house.

"It is an outrageous trick to play upon me in my old age," shouted Gen. Sickles as the "boys" disappeared.

The process servers were H. Osborne, a private detective of No. 66 Broadway, and a companion. The papers were turned over to Osborne after clerks from the office of Parks & McKinsley had made unsuccessful efforts to serve them for ten days.

The mystery of the disappearance of Teresa (Bigioli) Sickles, the first wife of General Sickles, was raised by Mrs. Anna Vail Martinez of Bradhurst avenue and One Hundred and Fifty-first street.

Mrs. Sickles' Girlhood Chum.

Mrs. Martinez, seventy-five years of age, was the girlhood chum of the first Mrs. Sickles. The story Mrs. Martinez tells is of particular interest in view of the belief of Alfred Summers Molyneux, who thinks he has proof he is the son of the first Mrs. Sickles.

For twenty-seven years after receiving this information Mr. Molyneux sought his mother and last week advertised to learn whether she was dead or alive.

"Mrs. Sickles died when she was thirty-one years old," said Mrs. Martinez. "I sang at her funeral.

"Mrs. Sickles was living in seclusion at One Hundred and Eighteenth street and North River at the time of her death," added Mrs. Martinez. "So far as I ever knew the Sickles had but one child. I was so intimate with Mrs. Sickles that it seems almost impossible that if a son were born to her she would not have confided in me. I have seen it published that Mrs. Sickles was divorced. This is not so."

SECRET HEARING IN GLOVER SUITS

A private hearing is being held in room 418 of the Suffolk County Courthouse, at which Mrs. Lillian M. Glover, wife of Clarence Glover, the murdered Waltham laundryman, is bringing suit against Samuel D. Elmore, executor of her husband's estate; the Waltham laundry, which she claims is her property, and the estate in which she claims she should share. She is also suing Seymour Glover, her brother-in-law.

Although the hearing is being held before Winfield S. Slocum, a master, in whose hands the case was placed last June by Justice Hammond of the Supreme Judicial Court, and is being heard in a public courthouse, Master Slocum ruled that no representative of the press be allowed to attend the hearing.

Mrs. Glover and her counsel, John A. Coulthurst, a member of the Boston City Council, were satisfied to have her testimony made public. Elbridge H. Anderson, appearing for Samuel D. Elmore, entered an objection to the presence of reporters.

Even Mr. Elmore stated that he had no objection to the printing of his testimony, but Attorney Anderson, in a lengthy statement to Master Slocum, objected strongly to the presence of any reporter at the hearing. The wishes of Mrs. Glover, Attorney Coulthurst and Samuel D. Elmore were overruled by Mr. Anderson's objection.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY WRECK; TWO KILLED

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 4.—The mail express train from Washington for Atlanta on the Southern Railway was wrecked at Cornelia early today. Two trainmen were killed and a half-dozen injured. The engine and mail and express cars were overturned. One dead: Jacob M. Costner, Atlanta, engineer; Ed Simpson (colored), fireman, Atlanta.

Estimate St. Regis Now Clears About $2.16 a Pound on Butter.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—They're charging you for your portion of bread and butter in certain hotels and restaurants today.

It means a saving of $30,000,000 a year for the proprietors who have already hung up the signs, so why not add a little more to their coffers and paste the following lists in conspicuous places?

Breathing, $1 a breath.
One glance at the Persian rug, $2.
Chairs and tables, $5 each.
Means, $1 each.
Napkins, 50 cents a piece.
Knives, forks, spoons, etc., 10 cents each.

In Europe there is an extra charge for all bread and butter served to diners, as well as in several of the larger cities of this country. So why, the proprietors argue, shouldn't New York fall in line?

Old Prices at a Few Places.

Nevertheless, there are several places of eats, as popular in certain quarters as the gilded places uptown, who haven't as yet tacked on the extra bread and butter charge to their menus. Here we quote, with all kinds of apologies, Hitchcock's, the restaurant on North William street, where the bread these days is stacked every bit as high, and the butter, as yet has shown no evidence of being carved at the corners.

"Cut out the bread and the butter unless they pay for it?" said the eagle-eyed hash-slinger in Hitchcock's, as he scooped up a hungry man's portion of beans. "Not yet awhile. We'd have to close the doors if we hung up a sign like that."

Not only have the hotels begun charging for the ordinary portion of bread and butter served each diner, but there was some talk today that only one portion would be served to every two diners and that two portions would be charged for.

$2.16 a Pound Profit.

A fair estimate of the amount of profit to be reaped by certain of the hotels who have come in under the agreement may be found at the Hotel St. Regis. The marketman there was buying butter today at 42 cents a pound. The way it is dished out to the diner shows that the average pound is resold by the hotel for 82.56 a pound, a net profit of $2.16.

"We charge nothing for the bread," said the maitre de hotel of one of the principal eat emporiums today, "but we did tack on the extra ten cents to pay for the butter. Butter is very expensive. We used to pay $4,000 a month for the butter we gave away for nothing."

BIG APPLES AMERICAN TENT

Unusual interest is manifested in the AMERICAN apple show at the Brockton Fair this week. Great crowds have stopped at the AMERICAN tent just inside of the main gate, and looked at the different types of apples. The crowd yesterday surpassed all previous ones. Great praise is bestowed upon the AMERICAN for its enterprise in promoting the apple industry. The show will close tonight. This will be the last day to see those apples—and they "are some apples," as a farmer who saw them remarked.

Professor Jacob K. Shaw, apple expert of the Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amerst, explained the different kinds of apples to admiring throngs. Later, with H. W. Rees, one of the leading apple experts in the United States, he went over the different apple exhibits, and selected the winners, whose names will be announced later.

Mr. Rees is from Oregon and is thoroughly familiar with Western methods of growing, packing and shipping apples. He will be at the AMERICAN tent today to explain about apple growing, diseases of apples and the ravages of insects.

ONE OF EIGHT MEN IN ROCKLAND WRECK DIES OF INJURIES

BROCKTON, Oct. 4.—Harry Wade of Rockland, one of the eight men injured when a train hit a wagon at the Union square railroad crossing in Rockland, died today at the Brockton Hospital. John Rourke, seventy-one years old, a fisherman, is still at the hospital in a critical condition.

The other six men were less seriously hurt. They were Daniel Lynch of Rockland, Jeremiah Ryan of Rockland, James McGrath of Rockland, Charles Cunningham of this city, Charles Wade of Rockland and T. E. Maguire of Rockland.

CIVIL SERVICE FOR CITY COLLECTORS

The city collecting department will soon be placed in the classified service, according to an announcement by Mayor Fitzgerald today. At present the city collector's office and the city treasury are the only municipal departments outside the civil service. According to today's announcement at City Hall, the Mayor's arrangement of the city collecting force was prompted by a report which expert accountants made after a careful investigation of the office in that report several recommendations were made, and the Mayor says he proposes to adopt them without further delay.

WIFE GONE 20 YEARS, CHARGES NON-SUPPORT

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 4.—To be defendant in a non-support case on complaint of his wife, whom he had not seen for twenty years and believed to be dead, is the unusual predicament of Charles Apel, No. 64 Martin street. It was so long since he had seen his wife that Apel could not recall her given name when arraigned before Recorder Carroll.

Office Boy, Now a Prosecutor, Fights Old Boss at Bar

The old story-book tale of the office boy who grew up and got at last to the place where he was just as big a man as his boss was re-enacted in the United States District Court when Daniel A. Shea, now Assistant United States District Attorney, the "boy," stood before the bar to prosecute Harry A. Wright, defended by John H. Casey, the "boss," and former Assistant United States District Attorney.

Harry Wright, the defendant, is the head of a detective agency in town. He is charged with harboring George Baum, a deserter from the marine corps on the battleship New Jersey.

PEACE DECLARED BETWEEN ITALY AND TURKISH EMPIRE

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Peace has been declared between Italy and Turkey, it is said here today. The Turks abandon sovereignty over Tripoli. The Sultan reserves spiritual claims, but Turkey agrees to withdraw her troops and endeavor to persuade the Arabs to submit. Italy agrees to help Turkey float a loan.

Formal announcement of peace is expected when Reschid Pacha, special peace commissioner, reaches Switzerland from Constantinople.

MORE JOBS THAN IN THE LAST SIX YEARS

Labor conditions were better in Boston during the last thirty days than at any other time in the six years previous, according to a bulletin issued at the State Free Employment office today. The official statement is made, that the demand for building tradesmen, carpenters, painters, paper hangers, plumbers, gasfitters, steamfitter and masons and general laborers since last Spring has been phenomenal and still remains good. Factory girls are in great demand at from $4 to $5, with no supply.

15 LOST ON SUBMARINE

DOVER, Eng., Oct. 4.—The British submarine B-2 was rammed by the Hamburg-American liner Amerika in a fog while manoeuvring in the English Channel off Goodwin Sands today, and was sunk, with the loss of fifteen lives.

The only survivor was Lieutenant Bultzes, second in command, who had an almost miraculous escape. He was found by the crew of another submarine clinging, exhausted, to a piece of wreckage.

PASTOR DROWNS AS SCORES REFUSE AID

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 4.—The Rev. John Monroe, pastor of a fashionable Episcopal Church in Richmond and an unidentified negro, lost their lives in the Potomac River near Wide Water, Va., when the boat in which they were fishing capsized. A score or more of young people in row boats nearby refused aid to the stricken men and calmly witnessed their death. The young people in the boats shouted back that none of them could swim and calmly continued fishing.

Cost of High Living Item; Champagne to Be Plentiful Soon

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 4.—By reason of the plentitude of grapes in the Lake Keuka region, where a large part of American champagne companies buy, and the weather conditions not being proper to ripen them for the market to housekeepers, it is the opinion of the wine makers that there will be more wine and champagne made this year than ever in the history of the wine industry. It is estimated that there are 22,000 acres of grapes in the Lake Keuka region, and a conservative estimate of the acreage yield is placed at two and one-half tons.

WINS WAGER BY MAKING HAIR GROW ON A BALD HEAD

TELLS HOW IT WAS DONE.

I have just finished the application of a wonderful lotion on my head which a few weeks ago was almost completely bald. Today my friends look with astonishment at my luxuriant growth of hair. It is amazing how much younger I appear. This sudden and seemingly miraculous transformation is the result of a wager with a doctor friend of mine, who declared that he knew of an infallible way to stop my falling hair, cure my dandruff and cause a new growth of thick hair of its natural color. I confess that I was sceptical, for experience with many remedies and tonics had already convinced me that this was impossible. Yet I consented to try the preparation which he recommended, but I wagered that it would not succeed. I used the lotion regularly twice a day, rubbing well into the scalp with a small brush, for I had been strongly recommended against applying it with the fingers or the hands, because of its extraordinary hair growing power. In less than a week's time the new, short hairs were growing so rapidly that I could not deny having lost my wager, and I assure you that I never lost a wager more gracefully. But I had gained a growth of hair and I was too overjoyed with this result to care for anything else. Upon inquiring from my friend I found that this lotion consisted of 2 oz. of Lavoza (the composer) mixed with 6 oz. of Bay Rum and ½ dr. of Menthol Crystals. How any druggist can prepare for such a small sum, a lotion so magic in its effects that it grows hair on a bald head, is more than I can understand. Yet the fact remains that any good druggist can prepare it, but only with the understanding that great care must be taken not to use it except on the head, for it would be most disagreeable to create a growth of superfluous hair on the neck or arms where the lotion might fall.

NOTE: If I publish this formula in the Boston American, it is only because of my promise that, should I lose my bet, I would make known to the world the secret of this remarkable lotion, which has the double advantage of costing so little and at the same time is absolutely certain in its effects. This is the forfeit of my wager.

DAKOTAN'S IRE ROUSED BY NASON'S QUESTIONS

By CLEMENT L. POLLOCK.

The interminable Russell will fight, resumed today in East Cambridge, has developed a form of Russellitis that is of a serious character. I make use of this characterization in no spirit of levity. It is famous, or infamous, 13-14-15 puzzle, which wrecked the minds of a number of people a few years ago, will be recalled. The Russell will fight, with Dakota Dan and Fresno Dan both claiming to be Daniel Blake Russell, is another such head-twisting puzzle.

One woman who has been deeply interested in the fight from the start collapsed for short time ago from nervous prostration, and it has developed a growth that necessitated a surgical operation. The physician attributed the whole trouble to the woman's incessant worry over the Russell case.

"Stop going to the trial," ordered the physician. "Put it out of your mind. Let em fight it out among themselves."

But in spite of this admonition the woman, not fully recovered from surgical treatment, was back in court this week.

Even Men Are Not Immune.

Indications that the Russellite mania has taken hold of some of the others in attendance almost every day at the hearings before Gilbert A. A. Pevey, sitting as master, are not wanting. Several women have told me that they have tried to retain at home, but that the trial drags on to East Cambridge like a huge magnet, whose attraction they have no power to neutralize.

Neither are the men immune from this peculiar obsession. Half a dozen men, not related to the Russell family and who will not be witnesses at the hearing, make daily pilgrimages to the East Cambridge court as though it were a shrine. Sometimes when the testimony drags these votaries take a quiet nap, only to be recalled to their duty by the vigilant court officer, Fred Rhodes.

The Russell will fight is one of the strangest, most incomprehensible legal controversies of history, and when it is over—if it ever is finished—it will leave a trail of wreckage behind—wrecked reputations wrecked minds and wrecked fortunes.

Dakota Dan was ten minutes late today. He was accompanied by Attorney Joseph H. McNally, William H. Scharton's assistant, who explained that they had been held up by a car. Master Pevey had cautioned all those participating in the case that they must be more prompt, so he suggested to McNally that he get an earlier car in the future.

Dakotan on the Stand.

Robert Nason, attorney for the Russell estate, continued his interrogation of Dakota Dan. The claimant had described the rooms on the ground floor of the Russell home and today he was taken up one flight. Dakota Dan referred to a closet on the second floor.

"Wasn't that a room rather than a closet?"

"Once we called it a fur room. There were some changes made in the house and father fixed up the banquet room and put in a billard table on the third floor."

"Was this room used in connection with the blue room?"

"I never had much to do with the blue room. That room was for guests and I never was around there much."

"Were you never in the blue room?"

"I slept in that room about a month shortly before I went away. I didn't get along with my brother and Bertha York had the spare room on the third floor. Sometimes I slept in a little bed in mother's room. I would go up there and lie down on the little bed to talk to mother and if I fell asleep mother would not wake me."

"Indicate the furniture in the blue room."

"The bed sat with the head to the west. It was rather a large bed with a high headboard."

"Keep Still," Says Dakotan.

"Will you mark the furniture in the room?"

"I-a-s," replied the Dakotan with a drawl, and in a tone of absolute disgust, as though he could not comprehend, while Mr. Nason insisted in pinning him down to every minute detail.

"Will you indicate that stand and chairs?"

"Well, they were moved about whenever you wanted to move them. If I wanted to sit in a certain place I would move a chair there."

The Dakotan mentioned a cabinet in the blue room. Mr. Nason wanted to know where it stood.

"If you will keep still," burst out the claimant, "I'll try to remember it." You keep bothering me and I can't. If you don't stop we might as well quit. That's all."

"Was the top of the cabinet, marble or wood?"

"I don't remember."

"You said there was a mirror on top of the cabinet. How was that fastened down?"

"I don't know how it was fastened down," replied Dakota Dan angrily. "It was in a frame and it was a good-sized mirror."

Dakota Dan was in a belligerent mood. Nason kept asking him to mark in his sketch things in the blue room. "When you were a guest in that room."

"Mark what was in that room," suggested Nason, "before you went home."

"I haven't had a chance to go home yet," replied the Dakotan. "But I will have before long, believe me."

Dakotan Belligerent.

"Were there any easy chairs in the blue room?"

"I don't know whether you would call them easy or not. They felt easy when you sat in them."

The Dakotan's temper kept at the boiling point. Nason asked him about a wardrobe, and the witness didn't seem to recall it.

"If you want to know about that room," retorted Dakota Dan, "I'll tell you. Father's guests slept there. I have some respect for my folks and I am not going to say things you want me to say."

"I'm not trying to get you to say anything against your people," replied Nason.

"Will you say there was a wardrobe in that room?"

"I will not."

"Will you say there wasn't?"

"I will not."

"Well, I'll help you a bit," suggested Nason.

"You need not," snapped the Dakotan. "I don't need any of your help. You help yourself."

Maybe I will be helping myself by helping you," remarked the lawyer.

Dakotan Not a "Guest."

"I don't think so," declared Dakota Dan."

And Nason asked again about additional furniture in the blue room.

"There has been a lot of furniture moved from there within the past year and I don't know what is there."

"I'm talking about the time when you occupied the blue room as a guest—" began Nason.

"I was not a guest there," came back the Dakotan. "I belonged there. It all belonged to us."

Mr. Nason did not make use of the phrase "when you were a guest" after this. Dakota Dan, referring to the pink room, stated that pink was his father's favorite color.

Pink and Blue Rooms.

Mr. Nason read from some of the testimony of Dakota Dan at the last trial. The claimant was asked then:

"Were there any rooms in the house known as the pink room and the blue room?"

"No," replied Dakota Dan.

When this testimony was read the Dakotan burst forth:

"Mr. Nason is reading what I said of the old house and is trying to throw it on to me as the new house. There were no pink and blue rooms in the old house. That is why I'm so particular this time explaining to the court the difference between the old and the new house."

"Did you know when you made that reply at the last trial," asked Mr. Nason, "that there was a pink room and a blue room in the house?"

"Yes."

Mr. Nason did not attempt to controvert the Dakotan's statement as to his testimony at the previous trial. Mr. Nason clicks to the pink room. Dakota Dan wanted to draw all the rooms at once, Nason wanted them drawn one at a time. Dakota Dan turned to Master Pevey with his request.

"I've been in the house," replied Master Pevey, "and I know by whe things are."

"I mean to be fair," replied the claimant with a smile, "and I wanted to be treated fairly."

Appeals to American.

One of the cause of Dakota Dan's irascible mood was explained when he came today to me and said:

"I want you to put AMERICAN that the printing of the buttons containing my picture must be stopped. I haven't received a cent fro mthe sale of those buttons and I haven't received a cent from that Melrose benefit of Wednesday night. I have to walk to an dfrom court every day. Iam being treated like a two-year-old baby.

"At the time o fthe last trial, I often walked about with $5,000 in my pocket. I want the people to know that I am not receiving a cent of the money they are spending for my buttons. After the last trial one man contributed $2,000 to my case, and my lawyer then took it and left the same day. I never saw a cent of that money. If this sort of thing continues I am going to quit. Now put that in the AMERICAN, for I want the public to know it."

MEXICAN DEPUTIES VOTE $10,000,000 LOAN

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 4.—The Chamber of Deputies voted last night to authorize the President to float a loan of 20,000,000 pesos (about $10,000,000), as a new war fund. That the Senate will approve this step there is no doubt. The scene in the chamber during the last hour of the session was one of great disorder.

Mrs. Clark Loses Point in Suit to Recover $800,000

Mrs. Helen Augusta Clark of Marlboro street loses by a decision of Judge Hardy in the equity motion session of the Suffolk Superior Court today, in one of the legal steps incidental to her suit against Hayes, Tewksbury & Company, Boston stock brokers, to recover $800,000 which she maintains represents stock market losses, and the interest thereon, of her late husband, George L. Clark.

Judge Hardy decides that the stock of foreign corporations cannot be attached here nor made subject to the trustees process.

Mrs. Clark attempted to attach certain stock held by the State National Bank for the defendant stockholders.

This action is part of a suit which has brought the Clark family into the public eye again. George L. Clark was the son of John M. Clark, known as Suffolk county's millionaire sheriff. The sheriff left his son $2,000,000. George L. Clark met his future wife, who was English, on shipboard. They were married in 1892. Clark died several months ago.

BRITAIN ORDERS FLEET TO EAST

A coastwise steamship war between the Boston owned Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies Company and the Southern Pacific lines, which may result in either being acquired by the other, has been begun. The opening shot is the cutting of rates from Baltimore to the South fully 25 per cent. In this fight the independent coastwise lines are likely to be gobbled up by one or the other of the combatants, and several small steamship companies have already been blotted out.

The Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies is said to have acquired the Texas City Steamship Company and the Southern Steamship Company, both of which run from Philadelphia and Baltimore south. The Southern Pacific is also busy.

The Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies include the Clyde, Mallory and Ward lines, which operate the biggest coastwise steamships afloat with the exception of the Southern Pacific boats.

The corporation was formed by Charles W. Morse before the panic of 1907 and was acquired by Boston interests shortly after.

The Gulf Steamship Company, one of the Southern Pacific subsidiaries is active in rate cutting and has charged that the opposition has been paying detectives to obtain copies of its manifests.

The Southern Pacific Railroad lines may have to be disposed of in view of the Panama Canal Bill, in which case a consolidation with the Atlantic Coast and Gulf is possible.

LIPTON PRAISES YANKEE YACHTSMEN

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Sir Thomas Lipton, sailing tomorrow for New York, in the hope of arranging another yacht race for the America's cup, said today: "I've nothing to complain of American sportsmanship, for I've never found better sportsmen and they have always treated me with utmost kindness and consideration."

BEAUTIFUL HAIR WOMAN'S CHARM, DON'T HAVE THIN, FADED, GRAY HAIR

A Simple Remedy Beautifies and Darkens the Hair. Cures Dandruff.

What a pity it is to see so many people with thin, wispy hair, faded or streaked with gray, and realize that most of these people might have soft, glossy, abundant hair of beautiful color and lustre if they would but use the proper treatment. There is no necessity for gray hair under sixty-five years of age, and there is no excuse for anyone, young or old, having thin, straggling hair, either full of dandruff or heavy and rank smelling with excessive oil.

You can bring back the natural color of your hair in a few days and forever rid yourself of any dandruff and loose hairs, and make your hair grow strong and beautiful by using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. For generations common garden Sage has been used for restoring and preserving the color of the hair; and Sulphur is recognized by Scalp Specialists as being excellent for treatment of hair and scalp troubles.

If you are troubled with dandruff or itching scalp, or if your hair is losing its color or coming out, get a fifty-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur from your druggist, and notice the improvement in the appearance of your hair after a few days' treatment.

MAYOR SCANLON TELLS HAYWOOD TO 'GET OUT'

This afternoon Mayor Scanlon at City Hall distributed small American flags to G. A. R. veterans. Each veteran placed a flag in his buttonhole.

After this firemen went to the Hall and strung a massive American flag on a line reaching from City Hall to the courthouse opposite.

While the firemen were raising the flag a big crowd gathered. John Donovan, an employe of the street cleaning division, was cheered as he passed with a large American flag floating from his cart.

On account for the demand for flags only one-third of the school children have been supplied. Several merchants who gave out small flags earlier in the day were besieged for more by children and adults.

It is not known how many flags will be distributed by the Boston Elevated Railway Company, but it is known that the supply will not be exhausted.

Flags Flying Everywhere.

Flags are flying on nearly every street in the city.

The supply of 20,000 flags which U. S. McConnell, purchasing agent of Lawrence, decided to buy today in Boston could not be secured in time for Columbus Day. He has informed that the order would only be filled by October 15. As that would be too late, McConnell made arrangements to get the flags in New York.

Fifty young men from Boston were sworn in today as special police officers. After days had been given them at City Hall, they went to the mills to report for duty. It was understood the specials would be stationed in the mill department in general disorder and to make arrests when necessary.

Haywood's threat of a general exodus was made in a statement to newspaper men.

"It isn't necessary for the I. W. W. and operatives to remain in Lawrence where they are compelled to fight continually for their bread and rights," declared Haywood. "Many communities there are in this country, especially in the West, where the discontented mill operatives of Lawrence will find far better conditions than they would be received with open arms. The fact is that we are now investigating where the people can best find employment outside this city and how arrangements can be made for a general exodus."

The demonstration of patriotism followed a meeting of citizens of all classes under the auspices of Mayor Scanlon and the City Council to discuss plans for a visit to the I. W. W. for parading the streets Sunday, flaunting the blood-red flag and with Old Glory conspicuous only by its absence. This demonstration of the people of Lawrence will be held on October 12.

MAYOR SCANLON OF LAWRENCE URGES ALL TO WEAR THE FLAG

To the patriotic and law-respecting people of Lawrence:

I urge every man, woman and child in Lawrence to procure a miniature American flag, and wear it every day, until Thanksgiving Day, as a rebuke to those detractors of our National Emblem who carry the red flag of anarchy through our streets on the Lord's Day.

Let ours be: "For God and Country."

The city government, all city employes, the members of the police and fire departments, the school teachers, and all others who come within the control of the civic authorities, will wear the flag.

Procure these flags now. Wear them constantly and conspicuously. In the name of God and Country.—From Mayor Scanlon's Appeal to Lawrence Citizens.

DEPUTY CHIEF NEAL DENIES HE CALLED CLUBBING DISGRACI

Last Wednesday afternoon Deputy Chief George C. Neal of the State police made the following statement to a group of Boston newspaper reporters in Lawrence (and when being the Boston AMERICAN reporter):

"A patrolman is given his gun and club to protect himself. Any policeman who uses those weapons as the Lawrence policemen did at the Arlington mills yesterday is a disgrace. It is an outrage the way they attacked those operatives."

Today the editor of the AMERICAN received the following letter from Deputy Neal, asking that the statement be denied:

Boston, Oct. 4, 1912.

Editor of the Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—In an edition of your paper on Wednesday I was credited with saying it was a disgrace and an outrage the way the police used their clubs at the Arlington Mills on Tuesday morning last in the city of Lawrence.

I did not say it was a disgrace and an outrage the way the police used their clubs at the Arlington Mills, nor anything like it. Personally I was not at the Arlington Mills on the day in question, nor did I see any person struck with a club while I was in the city of Lawrence. It seemed to me that the police easily had control of the situation.

Kindly give this denial the prominence in your paper that the statement referred to received, and oblige, Respectfully yours,

GEORGE C. NEAL,
Deputy Chief.

Oh, Joy! 300 Ball Tickets O. K. for Mayor's Rooters

Mayor Fitzgerald's "Royal Rooters" were jubilant this afternoon following a visit of Secretary John Heydler of the National Commission to City Hall when Secretary Heydler called to tell the Mayor that it was O. K. on the matter of tickets for the 300 Boston fans who wish to see the opening game in New York of the world's series.

The Mayor received this message from Ban Johnson this afternoon:

Your request relative to tickets for Boston fans who wish to witness first New York game will be granted. Secretary Heydler has been instructed to call on you. Am glad the matter has been adjusted to your satisfaction.

(Signed) BAN B. JOHNSON.

The street commissioners, at the request of the police and Fenway Park police officials, voted to suspend the traffic regulations relative to standing vehicles during the world's series games in Boston in the vicinity of the Fenway Park ball grounds.

In addition, Brookline avenue a one-way street, so that no vehicles can enter from Lansdowne, Newbury, Commonwealth or Beacon streets, except those to be a one-way street, to be entered only from Boylston street.

paper men from today's investigation. Coroner Phelan ordered the hearing open.

"I saw the engineer leaning out the cab," testified Gordon, "and waved at him repeatedly, but he paid no attention to me. When he took that crossover he was going at least sixty miles an hour, whereas the rules of the road forbid greater than fifteen miles an hour at such crossings."

For some unexplained reason, Engineer George L. Clark, who lost his life in the accident, drove his heavy train at top speed into the cross-over. The engine leaped the rails after crossing a bridge spanning a roadway, and toppled on its side half way down a 35-foot embankment. Almost immediately the boiler burst. In an instant the baggage and mail cars plunged down the embankment to the roadway, where they were splintered.

The first Pullman car leaped on top of the engine and burst into flames, incinerating several of the imprisoned passengers. Debris from the explosion scattered for hundreds of yards and many windows in the vicinity were smashed.

Engineer Clark was instantly killed and J. J. Moker, his fireman, fatally injured. The baggage car completely catapulted the engine, but a baggage man and a newsboy in it escaped with their lives. The four chair cars next following were overturned, and in the first of these occurred the loss of life. The three day coaches, although derailed, remained upright. To add to the distress the wreck carried down the poles carrying wires alongside of the tracks and delay ensued before outside assistance could be secured.

A pathetic scene was enacted at the Norwalk Hospital today when James C. Brady of Albany arrived and made inquiries for his wife. He had been told that she was still alive and was a patient in the hospital. When the physicians told him she was dead he collapsed and fell to the sidewalk. Bystanders carried him to his automobile. At the Garrah home in Hartford, where he was taken, it was said he was in a serious condition and was under the care of a physician.

New York dispatches say Mr. Brady's father, Anthony N. Brady, the capitalist, who lost his daughter, collapsed and is prostrated at Sherry's, where he lives in the Fall and Winter.

Words of praise were spoken today for the physicians who attended the injured at the Norwalk Hospital, Dr. S. Lawrence, Dr. William A. Tracey, Dr. Ward P. Gregory, Dr. James C. Gregory and Dr. Hutchinson.

They had been on constant duty since the wreck yesterday afternoon, alleviating the suffering of the wounded. Their duty was made even more exacting by the hundreds of visitors to the hospital who were anxiously inquiring for relatives or friends thought to be on the wrecked train. A constant string of automobiles drew up in front of the hospital.

Several convalescent patients in the hospital were moved to nearby residences where they took up temporary quarters to make room for the injured. Of the eight patients occupying cots in the hospital wards five were brought over the three miles of not too smooth road from the scene of the wreck, all suffered to some extent from the uncomfortable means of travel which they were compelled to undergo because of lack of ambulances.

Girl's Narrow Escape.

A thrilling story of her escape from death in the wreck was told by Miss Eleanor Bartlett, nineteen-year-old daughter of John Bartlett, patent attorney of New York.

"I was riding in the forward car when the crash came," Miss Bartlett said in New Haven. "In a second it seemed the car had crumpled up and I found myself pinned under the wreckage. Soon smoke came to my nostrils and then all of a sudden flames seemed to envelope me and everything about me.

"In some way I was able to get close to a window. I pounded on it to attract attention, but it seemed so long and death seemed so near before my cries and my pounding were heard.

"Some man kicked in the window glass and I was pulled out just as the flames swept over the place where I had been.

"I was cut and bruised and when my rescuers asked where I wanted to go I told them to the home of my aunt, Miss Ellen Strong Bartlett of New Haven, where I was taken in an automobile."

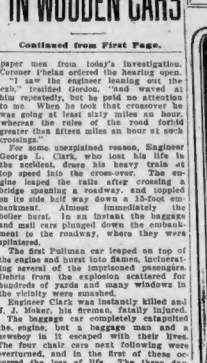
Miss Bartlett suffered from many cuts. Souvenir hunters threatened to interfere seriously with the early work of succoring the injured and continued their hunt today.

The investigation of the wreck by the State Public Utilities Commission, begun last night, was continued today by C. C. Elwell of New Haven, the commission's engineer, who was on the scene soon after the accident. Representatives of the Interstate Commerce Commission were expected at any time, the commission having been notified of the wreck by the New Haven immediately.

Passengers on the wrecked train who were here today agreed it was travelling at a speed of at least forty-five miles an hour. Some declared it to have been going sixty miles an hour.

Friends of the dead engineer, who was regarded as one of the most careful drivers on the road, are discussing an independent investigation of the wreck with a view to combatting the statement of the railroad that he "took the crossover at high speed in spite of the fact that the home signal was at danger or in 'stop' position."

MRS. E. P. GAVIT, ONE OF VICTIMS OF TRAIN WRECK



SIGNALS IGNORED BY ENGINEER, SAYS NEW HAVEN OFFICIAL

In respect to the wreck on the New Haven road at Westport, Ct., Vice-President Horn says:

"In this particular case, the 'home' and 'distant' signals were set against the train, which was the second section of train No. 53. The first section went through the crossover under the rules; the second section ignored both signals and struck the crossover at a speed estimated by many of close to sixty miles per hour, while the engineer has been cautioned to pass the crossover at fifteen miles per hour.

"The accident happened in daylight, daylight. The engineer could see the distant signal 4,000 feet before he reached it, and after he passed the distant signal, had 3,500 feet to go and bring his train under control, before he reached the home signal.

"We have, at the present writing, no way of knowing why the engineer ignored these two signals. We know, from statements of signal men who happened to be on the wrecked train and made a careful investigation immediately after the wreck, that the signal and track were in standard working condition. We also know that the first section taking the train thirteen minutes ahead of the wrecked train, in using the signals exactly as the wrecked train should have used them, went through in safety."

M'CUSKER ILL, BOARD POSTPONES ACTIO

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 4.—Owing to the illness of Warden Frances F. McCusker, it was announced, the Board of State Charities and Corrections failed to act at its regular meeting on the charges against its growing out of the contract for shirt-making at the Rhode Island State Prison. The report of the sub-committee which investigated was received, but no vote was taken. Two members of the band were absent. The matter was put over to the next meeting, in two weeks. Warden McCusker was said today to be resting a little more comfortably.

CURLEY PROMISES TO AID NAVY YARI

Congressman James F. Curley addressed the Navy Yard Shipfitters' Union meeting, declaring the Charlestown Navy Yard should have ample work for a large permanent force. He pledged himself to do all possible to bring about such a result.

DON'T WAIT TO BE ATTACKED.

If There Is Rheumatism In Your Blood Drive It Out Before It Disables You.

"Last winter was the first time in twenty years that I did not have an attack of rheumatism," said a man who was recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for this painful disease.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People do the only thing that will permanently cure rheumatism. They build up your thinned blood and purify and cleanse it of every trace of the rheumatic poison. They are invaluable both during an attack of the disease and during the intervals between attacks. If you have already passed through one or more stages of the disease it is advisable not to wait for an attack before using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills but to start taking them now and prevent a return of the trouble. Don't be satisfied until you have thoroughly cleansed your blood, for until this is done you will never be free from rheumatism.

Mrs. Charles Day, of Tidioute, Warren Co., Pa., says: "I was taken very suddenly with rheumatism which I first noticed as a pain in my right knee. The pain went down to my ankle and sometimes would be in both knees, causing them to swell, and was so intense that I could not move without the greatest agony. My hands were drawn up so that they were useless and it seemed as though every joint in my body was affected. I was in bed nearly all winter and was so helpless that I had to be waited on.

"For two months I was under a doctor's care without his medicine doing me any good. I then tried liniments and various medicines but received no help. After four months of suffering I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and felt much better before I had taken many boxes. I then decided to give them a thorough trial and was soon able to walk around and do my work. I feel that it is my duty to tell others what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me and hope it may benefit others."

Start today to cure yourself with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They are for sale by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, upon receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. Send for free booklet, "Diseases of the Blood, & Method of Home Treatment."

MRS. FOSS GUEST OF CLUBWOMEN

Mrs. Eugene Noble Foss, wife of the Governor, and Mrs George W. Perkins were guests of honor at a reception given by the Thursday Morning Fortnightly Club in Walton Hall, Dorchester, to the vice-presidents and secretaries of the clubs in the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs. The guests and members present numbered 800.

Mrs. Olive Whitney Hilton, violinist, gave "Meditation" from Massenet's "Thais" and Carl Dodge was well received in his Brahms selection. Mrs. Agnes D'Arcy, soprano soloist, and an active member of the club, sang the aria from "Carpenter's "Louise," as well as the group of songs from American composers.

The reception was under the supervision of Mrs. Mary E. Hawthaway. The tea room was decorated with clematis and Autumn fruits by Mrs. Addie Ray Pann. Friends of Mrs. Alice Taylor Jacobs, president of the club sent her many flowers, and a large bouquet was presented Mrs. Foss.

RICH MAN MAKES SHORT WEIGHT FIGHT

Walter E. Piper, general superintendent of the Boston Rubber Shoe Company, complained to the Malden sealer of weights and measures, William E. Dunn, that he was being short weighted by the Iceman. Mr. Piper said he thought a well-to-do man had as much right to protection as a poor one, and Truman Harris, driver for a Malden ice concern, must face a short-weight charge in court

It will build you up like no other medicine you have ever taken. You will notice an improvement the very first day you take this pleasant tasting tonic.

Tona Vita is sold by all druggists.

MARGARET KELLEY, WHOSE MINT OFFICE MAN IS TO TAKE

Miss Kelley, who, as assistant director of the United States Mint, was Uncle Sam's second highest salaried woman employe, has resigned to wed Major Robert Callan of the Coast Artillery

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—It requires not a "mere" man but a real man to fill the cafards—beg pardon—to take the position which Miss Margaret Valentine Kelley has resigned as examiner of the Bureau of the Mint to marry Major Robert Callan of the Coast Artillery Corps.

Uncle Sam thought that Miss Kelley knew more, and therefore was worth a bigger salary than any other woman but one on his payroll. As assistant director of the government she received $3,000 yearly. She first came into prominence when, during the absence of George E. Roberts, director of the mint, she became acting director, and the country was astonished to find a woman in charge of this important cog in the government machinery.

Major Callan thinks that Miss Kelley is worth $3,000,000 yearly—and more—as a wife, instead of $3,000, which is the most the Government will pay a woman. And the Government has decided that no other woman in the country can fill her place.

So a man—who has not been determined—will be appointed, according to an announcement made today.

MRS. SCOTT OUT OF D. A. R. FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The "administration" will have no candidate to oppose Mrs. William Cummings Story of New York for the post of successor to Mrs. Mathew T. Scott, presidet general of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The election takes place at the annual meeting of that organization in this city next May.

Announcement to this effect has been made by Mrs. Scott herself at a meeting of the national board of the D. A. R.

Mrs. Scott declared she would pursue a policy of "hands off" in connection with the selection of her successor, and added that the fight for president-general of the society would be an open and free for all, battle.

"May the best woman win," declared Mrs. Scott in a statement outlining her attitude in connection with the matter.

Mrs. Scott is now serving her second term as the head of the D. A. R., and the unwritten law of the organization prevents her from again being a candidate. Her announcement caused jubilation among the followers of Mrs. Story.

It Never Happened Before—It May Never Happen Again.
Here Is Your Chance to Get Broadway's Choice of Patterns.

Sale Men's Suits Made for Hackett, Carhart & Co. (Inc.)

Retail—One of New York's Largest Retail Clothiers—Operating Four Stores as follows:

265 Broadway, New York | 841 Broadway, New York | 119 West 42d St., New York | 154 East 125th St., New York

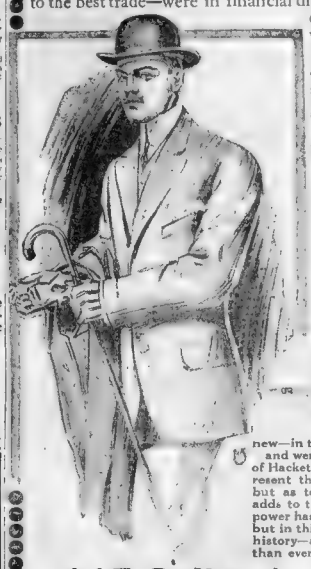
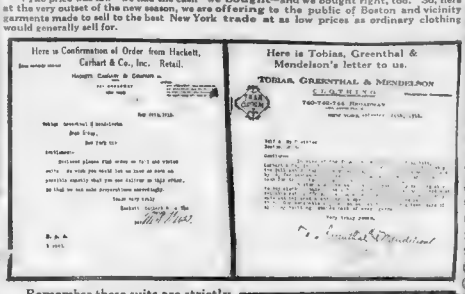
Hackett, Carhart & Co., Inc., Retail, one of New York's largest retail firms, operating stores at 265 Broadway, 841 Broadway, 119 West 42d St. and 154 East 125th St.—and who catered to the best trade—were in financial difficulty recently. A committee of three, chosen from many of the leading wholesale manufacturers of the United States, was appointed to examine its books.



An unrural opportunity presented itself to us.

The large and very well known wholesale manufacturing concern, Tobias, Greenthal and Mendelson, 740–742–744 Broadway, New York, who manufactured Fall and Winter Suits for Hackett, Carhart & Co., Inc., Retail, decided that in view of the financial difficulty, to sell the suits to any big retail concern who could and would pay cash for them.

We were in New York at the time and took advantage of this unusual situation. The price was low—we had the cash—we bought—and we bought right, too. So, here at the very outset of the new season, we are offering to the public of Boston and vicinity garments made to sell to the best New York trade at as low prices as ordinary clothing would generally sell for.



Here is Confirmation of Order from Hackett, Carhart & Co., Inc. Retail.

TAFT TO TOUR NEW ENGLAND

BEVERLY, Oct. 4—Although President Taft is making preparations for an extended automobile tour through Massachusetts, Vermont and New Hampshire, which will keep him away from Beverly until next Friday it took a turn at golf with Samuel Carr of Manchester on the Myopia course today. At noon the President and Mrs. Taft and Ambassador James Bryce of England were guests at a luncheon given by Senator Crane.

This afternoon the President enjoyed a ride in the Naval Institute dedicated to Artillery.

Tomorrow morning President Taft, Mrs. Taft and Miss Helen, with Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes and Miss Mabel Boardman, president of the Asset in Red Cross will leave Beverly on the auto trip. The party will motor first to Dublin and remain there until Sunday as the guest of Senator Clark.

From there the party will go to Townsend, Vt., where the President's father was born and where the three of the family still live. They will leave there Wednesday for Montpelier where the President will address the State Legislature. At Dublin the party will be guests of Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh. From Dublin they will motor back to Beverly where the President will remain for a few hours. He will leave in the afternoon on the Mayflower for Woods Hole to be the guest of U. S. Marine Forces, Lieutenant General of the Philippines.

From there he will go to New York and review the parade of the New York Naval Brigade returning to Beverly the next day.

After his return the President expects to spend one more week playing golf at Myopia, and then will pack up and journey to Hot Springs, Va., to spend November.

WHOSE LITTLE GIRL IS THIS?

The Methuen police have a winsome little mystery on their hands today in the form of an eight-year-old girl who says she is Elizabeth Klumon of Boston and that she was sent to Methuen by "Ruth and Robert" to meet her mamma.

The child was found crying on the platform of Methuen railroad station yesterday. She was frightened and told such a confusing story that the police decided to give her a night's rest before straightening out her tangled account. Patrolman Harry Nason took her home for the night and Mrs. Nason mothered the little waif over with her own child.

Elizabeth Klumon says she calls herself, and she lived in Revere with two adopted people whom she called "Ruth" and "Bob" and that they put her on a train at Boston yesterday and told her to get off at Methuen and meet her mother there.

There was no one to meet her at the station and Klumon waited till train came and then took the child home.

She is small for eight years, has brown eyes and brown hair cut in a Dutch clip and bound with pink ribbon.

Her calico dress is pink and her little sunbonnet is gray. In a small bundle was spare clothing which makes the police believe that the child actually was sent to Methuen by some one though with what motive they do not know.

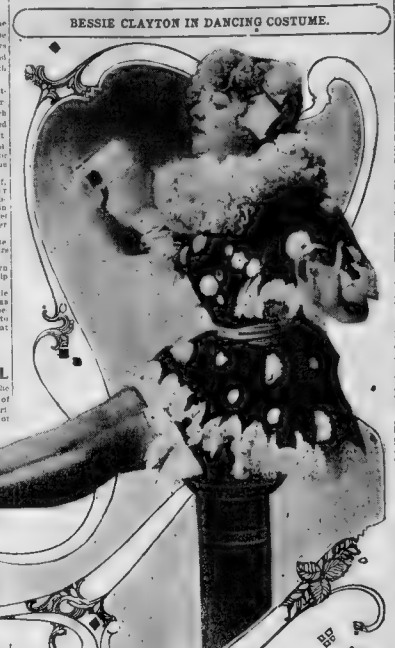
Dancer's Friends Are Loyal They Defend Miss Clayton

BESSIE CLAYTON IN DANCING COSTUME.



NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Friends of Miss Bessie Clayton, the dancer, who has been a stage favorite for many years, were disposed and indignant when the report came from Wheeling, W. Va., that her name had been mentioned in a suit for divorce brought by Mrs. Laura Farnum Schenk, the woman who underwent a serious trial and may be tried again on the charge of poisoning her husband, John O. Schenk, wealthy packer.

When a jury failed to agree she was released on bail, and her husband immediately sued for divorce, basing his action on testimony given at his wife's trial. Her present action is a counter suit.

The mention of Miss Clayton who in private life is Mrs. Julian Mitchell, wife of the noted actor and stage manager, is declared to be an outrage by the friends of the couple. These friends produced facts to refute the insinuations in the Wheeling suit.

Mrs. Mitchell is with her husband at their country place, near Long Branch. I said one of her oldest intimates last night. "All the difficulties that have marked their life in recent years have been cleared away. This unjustifiable action only gives opportunity for the happy announcement that the Mitchells are completely reconciled and are now living quietly with their eleven-year-old daughter. She has been able to leave the stage for a time and devote all her time to her home and husband.

The mysterious Schenk case aroused interest throughout the country about two years ago, when Mrs. Schenk, after returning from a trip abroad, became the victim of a insidious and inexplicable illness.

He was graduate nursing away and the physicians were baffled. One doctor had prescribed a certain mineral water for the patient and finally decided to test the water to see if it was pure. Traces of arsenic and lead were found in it.

Suspicion pointed to Mrs. Schenk. Her arrest followed, and when she was placed on trial her accusers put a young man named Dante Phillips on the stand. He testified concerning certain alleged relations between him and Mrs. Schenk—that she had given him such presents and that they had been guilty of misconduct. But the jury could not agree.

In her suit for divorce Mrs. Schenk names three women besides Miss Clayton, and denies her husband's charges, declaring that Phillips's testimony was outrageously false.

Julian Mitchell and Bessie Clayton are graduates of the Hoyt comedies of two decades ago. As a dancer Miss Clayton reached the climax of her popularity in the Weber & Field's productions, and in many of the later successes which followed the dissolution of that famous comedy team. Mr. Mitchell too, served with the Weber & Field Forces, later with Ziegfeld and with the Schuberts. The scenic effects of some of his productions, including "Babes in Toyland" and the "Wizard of Oz" brought him wide praise.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Despite reiterated reports of severe fighting in the Balkans, the general opinion among diplomats who are closely watching the situation involving Bulgaria, Servia, Montenegro and Greece is that there has been marked betterment in the situation within the last twenty-four hours. For the first time since the crisis developed the hope was held out that it would pass without any declaration of hostilities.

Constantinople All for War.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 4.—The war fever here is growing every hour. The newspapers and populace have united in their demand that the government declare war against the Balkan states.

Tells Grey Turkey's Course.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—An important conference on the Balkan situation was held today at the foreign office between Sir Edward Grey, the British Minister of Foreign Affairs, and the Turkish Ambassador. It is understood that the Turkish diplomat made known the course Turkey will pursue in the Balkan crisis.

MARGARET CURTIS, CHAMPION GOLFER, WOUNDS ONE HAND

Miss Margaret Curtis, national golf champion, seriously injured her right hand by pushing it through the glass pane of a door at her home at Manchester-by-the-Sea. It was at first feared that she would be obliged to default her match in the semi-final round of the championship.

Although several stitches were taken in the wound, Miss Curtis went to the links and immediately prepared to play. After each shot she had the hand rebandaged. Although she made some excellent shots, it was plainly seen that her injury was affecting her play.

580 WOMEN AND [illegible] KEEPERS ARRESTED

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Various movements that have met with some success in attacking vice conditions here were given impetus when John E. W. Wayman, State Attorney, went before the Municipal Court with more than 200 warrants for the arrest of disorderly resort keepers and other violators of the law. Officers began service of the warrants at once. Before midnight 580 resort keepers and women were under arrest. Further arrests are to follow until 1,000 are made.

Tomorrow Night All Roads Lead to the Cambridge Carnival

$50.00 Reward for the Capture of Miss Ad Taker

The Boston AMERICAN Will Pay the Reward in Cambridge Armory Tomorrow, Saturday, Night

Miss Ad Taker of the BOSTON AMERICAN will be in the Cambridge Armory tomorrow, between the hours of 7 and 10 P. M.

$50 will be paid on this occasion to the captor of Miss Ad Taker.

MISS AD TAKER will attend the Cambridge Industrial Carnival and Manufacturers' Exhibit. The exhibit is given in the Armory building, Massachusetts avenue, near Harvard bridge. Miss Ad Taker will be in the Armory building between 7 and 10 P. M. Saturday evening. For her capture $50 will be paid.

The person who identifies Miss Ad Taker of the Boston AMERICAN must have in his or her hand, in plain sight, a copy of this ad, or of the full Boston AMERICAN of the date of the day of capture, and shall say to her while she is in the Armory building: "You are Miss Ad Taker of the Boston AMERICAN." The first man, woman or child who identifies her, as directed, will receive a Boston AMERICAN order for $50 in gold.

HOW YOU WILL KNOW HER

Miss Ad Taker weighs 100 pounds, has dark hair and dark eyes, and SHE WILL WEAR A GOLD BRACELET. She cannot be captured unless this bracelet is worn and can be plainly seen. This provision is necessary because of the limited capacity of the Armory. Remember, she will not answer or award the prize unless the bracelet can be plainly seen. Go to the nearest entrance to the exhibition at the Cambridge Armory and win the $50.

WOMAN CATCHES MISS AD TAKER

Miss Ad Taker of the Boston AMERICAN was found at the carnival in the Armory building, Cambridge, last night by Mrs. Florence Newton of No 68 Hillsire street, Allston, at 9.20, just the time she was found the night previous. When she calls at the AMERICAN office she will receive fifty dollars. Miss Ad Taker will be at the carnival again tomorrow evening and whoever finds her will receive an order for fifty dollars

Mrs Newton had been in the building only about three-quarters of an hour At the booth of the Cambridge Electric Company she was looking at a washing machine when she saw a girl beside her wearing a bracelet as Miss Ad Taker would, according to the description published about her Mrs Newton is a thrifty woman but she turned and said

You are Miss Ad Taker of the Boston AMERICAN The girl smiled and said she was

What are you going to do with the fifty dollars? Mrs Newton was asked But she was so delighted over it she didn't know what she would do I'm just too nervous to talk," she said

With her little daughter she was led to the room where Manager Prescott announced that Miss Ad Taker had been found and that Mrs. Newton was the finder.

SPLIT UP ON PRISON TERM

One of the most pathetic cases ever raised to the attention of the federal authorities came to light in the U S district court when Max and Reuben Cohen, peddlers and owners of a farm at Lakeville, near Middleboro came up for sentence before Judge Morton They were indicted on the charge of conducting the business of distillers and operating illicit stills on their farm

After hearing an urgent plea by their counsel for leniency for one of the defendants, that he might return to the farm and care for the families of both, Judge Morton sentenced Reuben to a term of one year and one day at the New Bedford jail and fined him $100. Max was allowed to go on his personal recognizance with sentence deferred in order that he might work the farm and see that the nine children, his own wife and that of his brother are properly fed and cared for.

Science Understands the Stomach

Treating Indigestion with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Is an Exact Science. They Give Quick Relief

Medical men have learned more about the stomach than perhaps any other vital organ. They have discovered why the stomach rebels at certain conditions what causes the formation of gases what causes flatulency, heartburn, dyspepsia burning sensation bread, and all the other disorders of the stomach

They have gone further They have found remedies for all these afflictions these results of improper digestion. They have learned that pepsin, hydrochloric acid and fruit salts are powerful digestants that relieve quickly and surely all the troubles to which the stomach is subject. They have discovered that one grain of these properties will digest 1000 grains of food.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not a medicine They are a scientific compound that supplies the stomach with the digestive agents which it is itself unable to provide When your stomach is sick and not working right—when it fails to give out enough of the digestive juices to properly take care of the food you eat, these tablets will make up the deficiency You will have no indigestion. Your food will digest thoroughly.

You never can tell just when your stomach is going back on you. It gives no warning. If you eat a big meal if you eat hurriedly, take one of these little tablets. You will avoid a lot of pain and misery.

Some of the most prominent men carry these tablets in their vest pockets when they attend banquets, etc., and never fail to take them.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists, at 50c a box.

WILLIAMS RAPS T. R. TRUST PLAN

ATCHISON, Kan., Oct. 4.—George Fred Williams of Massachusetts, in a speech here, attacked the Progressive principles and leader and especially the trust control plan of the proposed federal industrial commission.

"The possibility of such a commission would be more implacable than those exercised by any monarchies, power on earth. From its decisions there could be no appeal and it would lead the political freedom of the Union a farce of the country in the hands of its head.

"The penalty I opose of the Progressive party was to elect Theodore Roosevelt President and I went on.

"The difference between the candidates and parties is that Mr. Wilson was nominated by the progressives of the country while Mr. Roosevelt was nominated the Progressives to support him."

In concluding, Mr. Williams declared the Progressive party was not really a distinct organization, but simply a section of the Republican party that "it is apparent that if it is a success or failure Mr. Roosevelt will at the end of four years calm the leadership of the Republican party."

WILSON MAKES INDIANA TOUR

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 4.—Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, Democratic candidate for President, made several speeches through Indiana today. In an address to the National Conservation Congress he lifted of the need of conserving human life, saying:

"The more widely we view the field of obligation the more clearly it will appear to us that our duty is only done in respect of the laying of the foundations when we have conserved the natural resources of America, for these national resources are of no consequence unless there is a free and virile people to use them.

"Just as soon as you make it a matter of conscience with your legislatures to see to it that human life is conserved where modern processes touch it, just so soon as you make it the duty of society to release the human spirit occasionally on play. Grounds surrounded with beauty, to give it even in the cities the touch of nature and the freedom of the open sky; just so soon as you realize and have all society realize that play and enjoyment is part of the building up of the human spirit, and that the load must sometimes be lifted or else it will be a breaking load, then you will begin to see that your factories are doing better work."

Mr. Wilson declared only now is the United States putting the finishing touches to its government.

"Almost all the best governed cities in the world," he said, "are on the other side of the water. Almost all the worst governed cities in the world—in the civilized world—are in America and the thing that is most taxing our political genius is making a decent finish where we made such a distinguished beginning."

Big Democratic leaders will gather at the Quincy House this evening for the "night before" the convention. The resolutions committee then will finish work on the platform and decide whether it shall contain a plank promising woman suffrage. That such a paragraph will be incorporated is considered by no means improbable. Several of the platform builders are in favor of votes for women, and Governor Frost is a well known advocate of "the cause." Last year the platform proposed putting the question in the people, but the Republicans killed the measure introduced in the Legislature.

The State Committee has a meeting tonight to make the final plans for the convention and stir up sentiment in favor of the slate of electors selected by the executive committee.

Chairman Thomas F. Riley has sent out an urgent appeal to all candidates, asking them to take part in a pow wow to-night-place in Faneuil Hall after the convention. In his letter he predicts a sweeping victory for the party in the State. He says:

"We shall win ten, and may win twelve, of the sixteen Congressional districts—we shall win dozens of extra seats in the lower branch of the State Legislature and several in the upper. The signs all points to a Massachusetts contribution of eighteen electoral votes for Woodrow Wilson and Thomas R. Marshall."

NEW LONDON, Oct. 4.—When at Montville on his way here, Governor Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana was struck on the nose by a stone thrown by a boy in the crowd that gathered to greet the Democratic vice-presidential candidate.

"First blood of the campaign," laughed the Governor. His nose was slightly cut. Mr. Marshall completed his New England visit by addressing audiences at Norwich and here. In both of these speeches and in his afternoon address at Worcester, he devoted much attention to Theodore Roosevelt.

GARDNER BEGINS CONGRESS FIGHT

HAVERHILL, Oct. 4.—The Sixth Essex District Congressional campaign was opened with a speech by Congressman A. P. Gardner before the Patrons of Husbandry in Grand Army Hall. Mr. Gardner talked about the tariff and the high cost of living.

New Bull Mooser in New Hampshire; Churchills Happy

CORNISH, N. H., Oct. 4.—The latest Bull Moose of any prominence is a seven and-one-half-pound son, born to Mr. and Mrs. Winston Churchill.

The father, who is stumping the State in his campaign as the Progressive candidate for Governor, is in Manchester today to address a Progressive rally.

A nurse who answered the telephone at the Churchill home confirmed a report of the advent of the child and added:

"He weighs seven-and-a-half pounds and is as fine a boy as you ever see."

CHURCHILL PLEA FOR GOOD ROADS

MEREDITH, Oct. 4.—Good roads leading to the farms rather than to the doors of summer hotels, were urged in a speech by Winston Churchill, Progressive candidate for Governor, He said farmers in many places are unable to get their produce to market because of the poor highways.

BROADWAY SEES ITS FIRST WILSON RALLY

HARVARD MEN TAKE STUMP FOR WILSON

Harvard men have just organized an active workers' bureau for Woodrow Wilson, and will go on the stump. It is said that the Roosevelt Club will do likewise. The Taft Club has not yet met.

GREAT CROWD AT MOOSE RALLY

Thirty-five hundred Progressives crowded Tremont Temple to open their State campaign and listened to speeches by Charles Bird, candidate for Governor; Matthew Hale and others. The buildmoose ca- en by Russ McKenney, a huntsman and guide from Patten, Me., was a feature of the gathering, no less than the enthusiastic cheering and singing of "Onward, Christian Soldiers." A collection was taken, netting $200, for the cause. Three bands played, and bandannas were everywhere. So great was the crowd an overflow meeting was held in Faneuil Hall.

Mr. Bird in his speech said.

"This is a fight between the Progressive and the Democratic parties. A vote for Taft is a vote wasted.

"Our party is greater than any man, and we were not formed to express or satisfy the ambition of one man. Any one who thinks so is blind, indeed, to the spirit and high purpose which actuated the enlightened and earnest men and women assembled last August in our Progressive Convention. We acknowledge our debt to the Republican party as it once was—the party of Lincoln, Seward, Andrew and Sumner. We also acknowledge the sterling and statesmanlike qualities of the founders of the Democratic party during its early history—a striking contrast to each party to the men who today control the machinery of each organization."

Mr. Hale, who was chairman, said:

"Many of us have tried the Republican blind alley and know it by experience. We voted last Spring for those progressive principles within the Republican party. We won. And then we came to the end of the blind alley and met Barnes, Penrose, the Chicago convention and the stolen nomination—and bear in mind that the importance of this convention lies in the fact that it was not a sporadic outburst of corruption, but that it was a natural outgrowth of the whole system and that it has been officially sanctioned by the Republicans in every State since the convention.

Daniel Cosgrove, formerly a Lowell Alderman, the candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, was heartily cheered. Addresses also were made by H. Heaton Newton of Everett, candidate for Attorney-General; Russell A. Wood of Chelsea candidate running for Secretary of State, Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard, out for the State Senate.

Seven hundred Progressives met Mr. Bird at the South Station and escorted him to Tremont Temple with red fire, shouting and music.

SULZER FAVORITE IN NEW YORK RACE

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The only election money shown in Wall street today was $10,000 offered on Sulzer for Governor at odds of 3 to 1. The odds on Straus are 6 to 5, and on Hedges 1 to 2. Sulzer is thus the favorite and Hedges the long shot. Wilson is most favored for President by the bettors.

SOUVENIRS AT ELECTRIC SHOW

Women thronged to the 1912 Boston Electric Show in Mechanics building today eager to be among the first 1,000 to enter, and thus secure a souvenir.

As it is impossible for visitors to see everything at one show at one visit, the management suggests that its patrons can be shifting their point of view while sitting in one of the little Dutch houses in the balcony of Grand Hall, each a perspective of a number of principal exhibits from this position.

The publication committee of the National Electric Light Association, a co-operative organization of 12,000 members, has just added a two days' meeting at the show building.

TRADES TEACHER URGES TRAINING FOR ALL GIRLS

Miss Florence E. Leadbetter, principal of Girls' Trade School on Massachusetts avenue

FIT GIRLS FOR LIFE'S SUCCESS

By SYBIL WARNE.

Make every girl successful in life by making her useful.

Make her happy in her work.

The modern girl is more capable than the girl of twenty years ago.

No girl need pine and wonder what she can do to earn her own living. Get into touch with some trade school.

Miss Florence E. Leadbetter principal of the Girls Trade School on Massachusetts avenue, defends in this manner the usefulness of the modern girl, when she is given a chance through the trade school. Hundreds of girls, through this agency, have been brought to a knowledge of themselves and what they can do through this agency, according to this principal. Every girl can be made successful by being made useful.

Be Happy at Work.

Miss Leadbetter was formerly connected with the Roxbury High School and for the past four years has given her whole time to the work of showing girls how to earn their own living.

"Make every girl see her usefulness in life. Above all make her happy in her work, urges Miss Leadbetter. Some girls wonder what they can do when they go out in the world to earn their own living. We anticipate that time for them. But before this we try to get all the useful sense of a girl to the front. If she wants to make her own dresses or all her wearing apparel we help her to do it.

"Some girls are more ingenious than others. Some are very good in getting up designs. They can plan a new and artistic style in millinery. Others are more responsible in dressmaking. Those of carelessness in getting together the material for dresses, and then they take hold of other essentials in preparing it readily.

Is Trained for Work.

"Now in our work in this trade school we are just giving a practical turn to education. If a girl wants to be a business woman she gets some of the rudiments that will help her in this choice. She is taught to put to a practical test her elementary knowledge of arithmetic, writing and other branches of knowledge.

"We make the girl see what she can do, and do it well. Here girls find out what they can do and what they like to do.

"Through this school girls are constantly passing and taking responsible positions. We do not allow them to take as a salary less than $6 a week.

"Now, a girl with $6 a week can do so much towards helping herself. We have taught her to make her own clothes. She has also learned how to be economical in the purchasing of food and in getting and preparing food that will be nutritious. She can cook the simple dishes; she has some idea of how to buy meat and the different cuts of meat and their prices.

"Girls today through these agencies of trade schools, are in advance of the girls of ten years ago. They know more about the practical things of life.

"Formerly girls were expected to learn much from their mothers. We send the girls often back into the homes to be a help to their mothers, as well as to suggest many things to them.

"It was expected of mothers to tell their daughters how to make their own clothes. But now this has been largely reversed. Girls are going back to their homes and telling their mothers some of the practical things in housekeeping, cooking, millinery, shopping, etc.

"Is it not a great help to have a girl go home and tell her mother how she can fix over her old hat and make it look new and keep it in style? Is it not a help to a tired mother to have her daughter go into the kitchen and get ready a simple meal, or meals, and at a trifling cost?

"Is it not a good help to have another girl tell her mother how to put a sleeve into the dress or shirtwaist so as to have it fit snugly? These are a few of the simple things that the modern girl is learning, but, above all, they enjoy their work. In this trade school my assistants and I make this work successful, and without their help it would not be what it is."

BONES CLEW IN OLD MYSTERY

DEARBORN, Oct. 4.—While hunting in the woods near Chesterton pond today Hugh Burns of No 9 West Day street this city found the bones of a child. The discovery recalled the disappearance of six years ago Wilbur Clarke, ten years old.

The police of Beverley and Manchester as well as many persons familiar with the facts surrounding the case believe the bones are those of the Clarke boy. Harry L. Clarke father of the lost boy was notified. The police hope to find some additional evidence regarding the identity of the child or to make identification sure. Today the bones are well preserved.

The disappearance of Wilbur Clarke caused intense excitement the United States and a fund of $150.00 was raised in Boston and New York newspapers to aid in the search. No clew was ever found.

The Clarke boy disappeared June 17, 1906 and with a few hours a search was begun which lasted for over a year. It was thought that the boy had been kidnaped. His father was a prominent manufacturer of Beverly and had a Summer cottage at Chesterton Pond. The pond was dragged and the woods searched but no trace of the boy was found.

TWO WOMEN HURT IN DEDHAM AUTO CRASH

Mrs John W. Woodward of High street, Dedham and a young woman who gave her name as Miss Jackson of Bridge street, Dedham were injured Friday when their automobile in which they were riding collided with the carriage of Leslie R. Burdakin at East and Washington streets from East street Mrs. Woodward and Miss Jackson were thrown twenty feet.

Dr. Andrew H. Hodgdon Miss Jackson one of whose legs was broken, was treated in a nearby house. Burdakin was not hurt. The car containing the women was going north along Washington street. Miss Jackson was driving. The machine in charge of Burdakin, a son of Joan Burdak n, register bl de ds of Dedham, was swinging in Washington street from East street Mrs. Woodward and Miss Jackson were thrown twenty feet.

FOSS AND LUCE AT THE BROCKTON FAIR

BROCKTON Oct. 4 Governor Foss with Lieutenant Governor Luce and members of the Governor's staff and the Executive Council arrived at the fair today. The Governor and his party were met at the station by a committee with automobiles in which they were driven to the Commercial Club where a special luncheon was given. Then the party went to the fair grounds where the governor was escorted around the big track and then into a special box in the grand stand.

ALFONSO CONVOKES SPANISH PARLIAMENT

MADRID, Oct. 4.—King Alfonso today convoked the Spanish Parliament to meet on October 14 to discuss the situation arising out of the strike on the Spanish railroads, which has held up almost the entire traffic of Spain.

THINKS MOTOR BOAT AND SIX WENT DOWN OFF HIGHLAND LIGHT

Captain Bragg of the fishing schooner Rose Dorothea, lying at T wharf, reports that on Tuesday night, during a fifty-five mile gale, eight miles north-northeast of Highland Light he sighted a power boat containing five or six men in danger of being swamped by the high seas. Captain Bragg said he attempted to sail down and take the men aboard the vessel, but the gale was so fierce that was impossible. He said he ran about two feet apart from and that he could observe nothing else and got back the boat and men disappeared. He thinks the boat and men foundered.

Practical eugenics can do nothing toward raising the race standard, because the idea is impracticable. Marriages resulting from a study of eugenics means unhappiness, noted specialist declares.

DR. ANNA BLOOMER, WHO SAYS EUGENICS ARE IMPRACTICABLE

SAYS EUGENICS FRIGHTEN LOVE

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 "Marriages resulting from an exhaustive study of the laws of eugenics, will bring about profound unhappiness in the home.

"When men and women reach the stage where they will enter into the bonds of matrimony, principally among so-called [illegible] can assured love will fly out of the window.

There is no blood in the aristocrats that is not tainted.

"Practical eugenics can do nothing toward raising the race standard. This is one forth is a splendid one, but that's [illegible] more knotty.

Such is what Dr. Anna Bloomer, a New York specialist in diseases of women and children, of No. 700 West 179th street, had to say, when asked to comment on the views of Dr. Vernon M. Cady, who stated that the real "Where to Marry" according to the laws of Eugenics is being compiled at the eugenics records office at Cold Spring Harbor, New York.

"If human beings could be raised like animals then I would say that the study of eugenics would bring about good marriages," continued Dr. Bloomer.

"The offspring of a couple who have reached a certain age, and who have examined the mental and physical conditions will naturally be a success. But how many men and women, who before any other day today would, I feel the faults of their lovers to stop [illegible] them all. [illegible] is safe to say that a young man would marry his choice and disregard the remarks made by her lady."

REPORT SURRENDER OF NICARAGUAN TOWN

SAN JUAN DEL SUR, Nicaragua, via Galveston, Tex., Oct. 4—Jinotepe, in the attempted capture of which General Avendano Vasquez lost his life two days ago, has surrendered to the government, according to dispatches received here. General Pedro Cuadra, the leader of the revolution forces, was wounded and eight of the defenders with two machine guns were captured.

FOUR INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

The two young women and two men injured when an automobile struck a grocer's delivery wagon at Fremont street and Rice Hill avenue, Dorchester, are all today recovering from the effects with the exception of Miss Mary E. Campbell, 20, who is at the City Hospital with a broken nose and a possible fracture of the skull.

The others injured are

SHEA, LOUISA, thirty-two, deep gash over right eye, with multiple abrasions.

HAMILTON, EDWIN E., driver of the automobile, No. 635 Columbus avenue, minor cuts and bruises.

MOYE, MORRIS F., thirty, No. 337 Adams street, Dorchester, received minor contusions and cuts.

The wrecked car is said to have been following an erratic course up Fremont street toward Rice Hill avenue where it met another car, and it was in attempting to steer out for the other, according to Hamilton, that it struck the delivery team.

The grocery team was the property of J. C. Talbot of No. 1157 Washington street, Dorchester. The driver, Israel W. Meyers, had just left the wagon to enter a house. The horse was not injured. Miss Campbell, the most seriously injured member of the party said she lived at No. 21 Perkins street, Dorchester. Miss Shea said she lived at No. 1612 Dorchester avenue. There is a vacant lot at that number.

Engaged in Five Minutes, Wed in 60, is Chicago Record

CHICAGO, Oct. 4—Five minutes after John H. Hinsley, fifty-three years old, of Hammond, Ind., met Mollie Brown, eighteen years old, to hire her as a housekeeper, they became engaged. An hour later they were married.

The girl admits the brevity of acquaintance and courtship, but Hinsley says he is not surprised in the least. He received, he said, "messages from a higher force" which told him of the coming marriage. The bride is an orphan.

Wakefield Citizens Buy Coke and Plan to Boycott Coal

Wakefield citizens, in the protest against the rise in the price from $8.50 to $10 a ton for coal, have organized a small boycott. The municipal light plant office reported that orders for coke were being booked as fast as the clerks can enter them. In one hour fifty-three tons were ordered by Wakefield people.

A group of citizens got together late in the day with the intention of clubbing together and buying a carload independently, but soon found that it would not be sold to them at any price, because of protection guaranteed the retailers.

Ten dollars a ton is the price in Stoneham, also. Retailing dealers have not raised their price from $8.25, but it is because they have nothing to charge more for.

CASCARETS TONIGHT! IF BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED, HEADACHY AND SICK

Turn the rascals out - the headache, biliousness, indigestion, constipation, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases - turn them out tonight with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress - wake up refreshed and feel fine. Let Cascarets cleanse and sweeten your stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and that misery-making gas, take the excess bile from your liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and constipation poison from the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning - a 10-cent box keeps your head clear, stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular and you feel cheerful and lively for months. Don't forget the children - their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Filene's Automatic Bargain Basement

An Instance of What We Mean by "A Low First Price"

TUESDAY morning at 8:30 we placed on sale 58 coats at $2.50.

At 9:25 all the coats were sold, except four, which were in an odd color for which there is not a large demand.

Now these coats had 12 days to sell out at this first price. They sold in 55 minutes. Had there been no limit upon the time in which to sell them they might have all sold at a higher price.

But like every other lot that comes to the Automatic Bargain Basement, the FIRST price was made low in order to sell them in the quickest time.

Hundreds of lots every day reflect the results of this plan, conceived for the purpose of making every lot a bargain.

The lots that follow are placed on sale at FIRST prices which we believe will sell them quickly. The hundreds of lots not advertised here are priced in the same way.

And when, for any reason, a lot does NOT sell quickly, along come automatic reductions, and the price goes lower and lower until the lot DOES sell.

An Example of the Savings:

Boys' Overcoats

$5 & $6 Grades

$3.95

All-wool gray chinchilla overcoats. Button to the neck, with or without belts. Some have Venetian yoke and wool lining.

STAHL FUND ON HOME STRETCH

The committee in charge of the Jake Stahl auto fund is glad to announce today that the home stretch has been reached. The members of that energetic committee mean that the remaining third or portion of the fund must now be raised.

Time is limited and once more the fans are urged to forward their donations.

The receipts yesterday were very pleasing. The largest was received from Thomas F. Galvin, the Soriet. Here is his letter

Jake Stahl Auto Fund.
Boston American, Boston.
Gentlemen:

Please accept inclosed check for $20 for "Jakes" fund.

He certainly deserves an auto for his good work this season.

With best wishes to Jake and the Sport Page for the coming series and compliments on past performances I am

Very truly yours
THOMAS F. GALVIN.

Mr. Grady's Contribution.

Thomas F. Grady, the Boston lawyer who saved the life of Leon Czolgosz, past $5 to the fund Grady in his note said: "If ten that carry more in Boston should make a contribution to a worthy fund. It is of such importance to Boston to win a pennant. Who is really responsible for making that pennant other than Stahl? He is just the type of man we should cheer. I hope the auto will be a big one. I am sure it will be a dandy."

A program of fun high up in the financial world and a ten dollar check with the request that his name should not be used. Remember the Jake will appreciate it. Still during one of the world's series games in the city. Thirty-five thousand fans will witness the event. Major Fitzgerald as the first citizen of Boston put out one of the first to make a contribution will make the presents flow easily. You want to be there and you will want to feel that you have done your share toward hauling the fund.

See the Game Saturday.

You may be going to attend that ball game Saturday afternoon at Fenway Park between the Souvenir baseball team and the St. Douglas team of South Boston. Both teams are fast. They will present real baseball to you. The price for a grandstand seat is twenty five cents. The gate is closed at 2:45. Get there early and secure a good seat.

Last fund is the most successful ever started in this country. Other cities have started such funds with much to boost a good team. It remained for old Boston to really do the thing right. Boston fans have responded as they always do for a worthy cause.

New York Tickets In Doubt
Mayor Tries Hard for Them

Red Sox Management Issues Statement Regarding Sale of Tickets at Fenway Park.

John A. Hurdler, secretary of the National League and the representative of the National Commission on World's Series tickets, is expected in Boston today, bringing with him orders for seats to the Boston games approved by the commission. When he returns to New York tonight he will take with him the Boston orders for New York seats. It is not yet known just how well Boston fans will fare in the New York allotment.

There is considerable doubt that 500 tickets asked for will be at the disposal of Mayor Fitzgerald. The following dispatch was received by the Mayor

John F. Fitzgerald, Mayor of Boston
Have instructed Secretary Hedden to reserve 200 seats for Boston rooters for the opening game of the World Series. The tickets must be called for before 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.
BAN B. JOHNSON.

This was in reply to the Mayor's telegram to Johnson after the New York club had declined to give us the tickets.

When the receipt of this telegram became known to the local rooters there was much rejoicing.

Subsequently another telegram was received by Mayor Fitzgerald from Mr. Johnson, saying that the management in New York had backed on his request and he did not know what the ultimate outcome would be. He assured the Mayor, however, that he would do his utmost to see that the seats were reserved.

The latest telegram from President Johnson therefore, leaves the matter still in the air.

The Fenway Park offices opened again at 9 o'clock today for the further sale of selected tickets. About one-sixth of the reserved seats were taken up in the first day's sale. The management announced that it is not necessary for the lucky ones to come in person for their tickets. A messenger boy will do just as well, if he brings the signed identification card with him. Only Uncle Sam's greenbacks will be taken in payment for passboards, however. No checks received.

Patrons of the game in out of town places are notified that their seats will be held for them until noon of the day of the first game in Boston. Many thought it was first come first served as Treasurer Hedley wished this statement issued.

In a statement issued by Secretary Mc-Roy of the Boston Red Sox, he states that with a very few exceptions the club has reservations to all to whom tickets were allotted.

"The box office at Fenway Park," he states, "will be open from 9 until 8. Those holding cards may send for their tickets by messenger provided card is properly signed. The cards are all in individual envelopes and will be held until Wednesday, October 9, at 12 o'clock noon. This will make it possible for those living out of town to get their tickets without making a special trip to the park.

"When the grandstand tickets were exhausted we filled the balance of requests in what is known as the third base stand. This stand provides an excellent view of the game and is in every way as suitable for ladies as for men. Each seat is numbered and the entrance is through the main grandstand with all its facilities for the comfort of our patrons.

Sumner Thompson of Dedham, who was the first baseball fan of Greater Boston to buy seats for the World's Series games at Fenway Park.

On the Gridiron

Boston College Practice.

Coach Hiker Joy spelled the finishing touches to the Boston College football candidates at the William Enstis street playgrounds Boston yesterday in preparation for the first game of the season with Fordham College, which will be played on the latter's grounds in the Bronx on Saturday afternoon.

Although Boston team is likely to be outweighed, the boys expect to more than make up for what it lacks in weight by its speed. Neither college is aware of the strength of the other eleven which makes the grounds interesting and uncertain. The probable lineup of Boston College follows: Heffernan and Woods, ends; Killion and Brennan tackles; Hurley and Brandon guards, O'Neil or Burke center; Cupi, Hartigan quarterback. The halfbacks will be chosen from the following players: Casey, Fallon, Fleming, Hennessey, Sheehan. Substitutes Sheehan, Gavin, Roche, McCarthy, McCormick, Logue, Duffy and Kiley.

Tufts Prepares for Maine.

The outlook of the Tufts football team for the game with Maine on Saturday is some too promising. Several of the varsity men are out of the game because of injuries. Richardson, the varsity quarter, who wrenched his knee in the Amherst game, will probably be unable to play. Wilson, the quarterback, has not been out for practice since his collision with Ford on Monday but still he may play. Several new men have reported for work, among whom were Curtis the former Prescott High back and Gay varsity end of last year's team. Coach Whelan spent considerable time with the forward pass which it is thought will prove successful against a heavy team like Maine. If Tufts puts up as good a game as they did against Amherst, Maine will experience considerable difficulty in defeating them

SPEAKER WINS AWARD OF AUTO

This Speaker will be the proud possessor of a stable of automobiles before the World s Series ends. His owns one now and will be the recipient of another as he has been named by a committee as the man to receive the car annually awarded by the Chalmers Motor Co to the player in the American League adjudged the most useful to his team. Larry Doyle, captain of the New York Giants, is the lucky man in his league, and he, too, will receive an automobile.

The players were chosen in a mail vote taken by baseball writers who report the big league games. The Boston representative received fifty-nine votes or within two of the unanimous choice. Doyle received forty-eight votes, only five more than Hans Wagner of the Pittsburgh baseballers. The next man to draw was Myers of New York, with twenty-five. Walsh of Chicago pitcher, was second in the American League with thirty.

Last year the winners were Tv Cobb of Detroit and Frank Schulte of the Chicago Nationals.

Newspaper Men Decide.

The voting was confined to the same number as in 1914 a commission of newspaper men representing each league to the number of eight. The official records of the games will be used. Each Baseball writers secretary, either in Boston, New York, by mail distributes the ballots to the members of the committee.

Speaker participated in 150 American League games and in 560 times at bat scored 233 hits out of 455 times scoring 143 runs. He was a leader in the fifty base slugging, not record showing fifteen doubles seven triples and seven home runs. Aided by nine of which he committed eight put-outs and six assists. Speaker also batted .322 in the world's series, either in Boston or New York, he will distribute the money to the automobile.

Five Votes Less Than Cobb.

The selection of Speaker in the American League, while not unanimous showed that the Boston slugger was considered the most valuable player all over the circuit. Out of a possible 64 votes Speaker was given 58, five less than Cobb last year.

In comparing the data the commissioners paid another pretty tribute to the wonderful pitching of Big Ed Walsh, who again was named second in the ranking the same position he earned last year. This season he was credited with 30 points or 5 less than he gained last year. The spiritual star in the only Chicago player picked in the junior league figures. Even in three players of Tris Speaker Johnson of Washington broke into the honor roll, while twenty four trots greats were cited in the selections also serves to show how the jury regarded the work of Connie Mack's pupils last season. Although Cobb, Crawford, Tigers honored are Leonard and Murray, Shotton, Pratt of the Browns, Jackson and Burns of the Naps and Bush of the Yankees round out the list.

FAST TIME IN THE COLUMBUS RACES

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 4.—The most remarkable long-distance pacing race on history was staged at the Grand Circuit meeting yesterday Evelyn W and Earl, Jr., fighting five heats for first honors in the free-for-all class, the time of the event averaging a shade better than 2 05. The event was marred by an accident to the fast local horse, Independence Boy, who broke a bone in his left hind leg just after the start of the most next and will probably have to be killed.

FAT MEN

Nobody loves a fat man, when it comes to making clothes at the regular prices.

Everybody hands it to the man with the extra weight—probably because they think he is too good natured to howl. At this shop, we make no "extra charge" for extra size clothes. Your waist-measure can be 60 and your height 7 FEET 6. The price will be just the same as the small-sized man.

Our prices run $15 TO $25 FOR SUIT (OR OVERCOAT)—and these prices go as they lay. If these figures are all right as to price, you needn't worry about the clothes.

Fitted to your measure—correct in style—guaranteed to wear—you are saving $15 on every purchase you make here. You can try it, once—anyhow—just for luck.

Larry Gardner Back; Finger Still Bad

McGraw's Pitchers Watch Sox Work

By L. R. MURDOCH.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4. Larry Gardner is with the Red Sox again, but Larry's little finger on his throwing hand is in such shape that there are grave fears today that the American League champions will be minus the dazzling play of the young third hacker next week.

Gardner is confident that he will [illegible] the game, but it is doubtful if he can stand the hard raps that come to the home station—the stopping [illegible] going to bases with the speed of which that made him famous this year. It is doubtful if he can run bases with any agility as he has shown heretofore and there is a question, too, regarding the dislocation of the little finger with which he will have to heave it to first whether it will [illegible] which is well over the [illegible] this year, will not suffer.

Before the injury, Gardner easily out-[illegible] Buck Herzog, notwithstanding Herzog is a demon at the third corner. Gandy with the bat and fast on the bases. It is feared that Gardner's injury will [illegible] down to Herzog's level and, of course, any severe rape in the injured spot will send Larry back to the bench. In which case Clyde Engle will have to play third base.

Gardner's Handicap.

Gardner will have to favor his throwing hand, that in itself lowers his ability since the abandon with which he played his [illegible] was one of the chief characteristics of his work.

Assuming that a World's Series would last six games, Gardner would be found on for [illegible] nine hits for a total of ten or twelve bases, while under ordinary circumstances Engle would be [illegible] rated for six hits or seven hits with a total of seven to nine bases. For [illegible] too, is classed as a more timely batter than Engle is. Their work on the bases can not be compared, Gardner being as much superior in every respect to Engle as Gardner's condition therefore is the Red Sox's most serious problem today.

The Sox, however, are going ahead with sublime self-confidence and [illegible] as to feat, looking at the series from whatever angle you will. If half of them were on the hospital list they would probably have the same buoyant feeling. They have won their games this year so consistently and by so many different means that the loss of a man here and there does not worry them. They are confident that if this man fails to "come across" the other will not fail.

Tuning-up Help Lacking.

The other American League teams have failed to give them the tuning-up help that was promised. The struggle between the Senators and Athletics for second place has deprived the Sox of the opposition [illegible] that they should have had. Clarke's fifth in Washington, counted the Sox series as good as lost, so he saved his best pitching material for the games with the Yankees, hoping to clean up three straight in New York and beat out the Athletics. Mack, working with the same idea, used his best fingers in New York before meeting the Red Sox.

It looks now as if Mack will have to work a head off to capture second place, as the Sox, while appreciating the advice of the Athletics in pointing up for the World's Series, prefer the Senators in the race for second place and besides, are being urged to work their fastest just now so as to get "on edge" for next week's games.

In Washington, Griffith cut loose his minor pitchers and the Sox had to dodge wild balls to save their lives. Mack produced two of his recruit men, Brown and Peacock, yesterday. The Sox waited out their offerings and when they did hit [illegible] slammed the ball everywhere. It was a wild day. Boston drew ten bases on balls and hit seventeen safe ones.

It is possible, though, that the Sox would have hit any pitching. They have cut loose with the bat this week. Speaker, Lewis, Carrigan and Wagner do not share the common notion that the World's Series will be won by small scores. They believe that it will be a clouting game, for the most part and that Boston will do by far the most of the clouting.

Fun for Speaker.

Speaker, himself, has been swinging well for the past month and has not batted nearly up to his best standard since the Red Sox won the pennant. Speaker, however, does not take baseball seriously just now and he is having a bunch of fun out of the games. Although his team [illegible] this yesterday, "Spoke" did not figure in the batting column. He walked three times, though, while he [illegible] two pitchers and in the last inning there were three on when Tris made a fetch in left of the ball game.

Hooper was on third base, Yerkes at second and "Spoke" at first, with two out. Lewis hit to right. Hooper and Yerkes scored easily while Eddie Collins waited for Murphy's return of the ball. While everybody, including the umpires, was watching Murphy, Collins and the ball, Speaker passed second base and then cut directly for home, just running around the pitcher's mound, and giving third base a thirty-foot leeway.

When Collins recovered the ball and saw "Spoke" shooting across the green grass, the Athletics went up into the air. They hardly knew what to do. Meanwhile, Speaker reached the base line and rushed back towards it, where he was barely touched, Murphy to Collins to Pennock to Egan to Baker.

"Matty" and "Rube" on Hand.

Christy Mathewson and Rube Marquard, the two Giant pitching experts—left their home fold and came to see the Red Sox from a box at Shibe Park. They were preceded by Wilbert Robinson, McGraw's coach in chief who has trained half of the Giants and was the maker of Marquard. Robinson watched the American League champions in Washington. "Matty" and "the Rube" came over to get a line on the Red Sox batters, but incidentally likes were interested in what Wood and Collins are doing. They saw Wood yesterday and expected to look over Collins work today.

Wood did not show an impressive performance. Joe has not worked much lately, he did not pretend to work his hardest but he had a bad third inning, besides being a bit shy now and then in other sessions. The Sox fielded indifferently, too. Lewis dropped one squarely in his hands in the third; Cady missed a third strike and threw wild in the fifth and would let an easy one pass him in the sixth. The Sox have a tendency to do these things now.

In his present condition Wood should do much better in the World's Series, but it looks as if he needed some more hard work and that he ought to pitch a few hard innings on Saturday. The Athletics are the hardest nuts that Wood has to crack, which must be taken into consideration when yesterday's performance is referred to as "dope" on the World's Series. Also, if pressed, he would probably have done much better.

The Sox players themselves said that they were very well satisfied with what Wood did yesterday.

Yerkes, Duffy Lewis and Wagner did the talk of the Red Sox batting in the morning encounter with the Athletics. Lewis has been singling the ball ever since some of the stars dropped off and "Heinie" Wagner has improved every day.

Connie Mack said today that he used Brown in yesterday's game because the youngster was pitching better than any other man in the world's champion corps. Brown certainly did have a good fast curve ball until the Sox batters discovered after four innings of blanks that he was usually flinging it an inch or two wide of the plate so they began to wait him out and accept only the good ones.

PHILLIES FIND EASY PITCHING

The Phillies will have another chance to fatten their batting averages this afternoon when they meet the Pilgrims for the second game of the series. It is chilly weather for tail-end baseball and only a small crowd was out yesterday to see Doolin's men take the first fall in the catch-as-catch-can series.

After winning a double-header from Brooklyn on Wednesday, the 400-odd fans expected to see them offer some semblance of fight with the Philadelphia team. Their fight was apparently to lose the game, which they did, 13 to 4.

The game was a joke. Seven juicy errors, some of them of the rankest order, was the offering of the Boston defence, while the pitching pair, Dickson and Donnelly, failed to show any reasonable cause why they should be classed as major league twirlers.

TRY OUT NEW HARVARD PLAYS

Preparation for the game with the Holy Cross team continued today when the Harvard squad was ordered to develop a new combination of plays for the game tomorrow.

The general opinion is that no attempt will be made to register a large score against the Holy Cross team, as the Harvard team is not anxious to uncover any of its plays as yet.

Secret signal and blackboard practice was the rule today, followed by practice in the rudiments of the game.

The tendency to fumble the ball still appears in the Harvard team, this being especially noticeable when it comes to shifting plays. The offence is still strong, as usual, and the open style of play is being developed as much as possible.

The work of Dr. Mueller continues as a prominent feature of a practice marked by little team play.

The arrival of Coach Parker has greatly helped the team, and it is believed that he will be able to teach the team many new dodges which it has not at present paid much attention to.

In general, tomorrow low scores and defensive plays on the part of the Harvard team may be looked forward to.

Doyle Spiked, but Will Play Big Games

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Larry Doyle, captain and second baseman of the Giants, declared today that he would not be out of the game this afternoon on account of the spiking he received in the argument with Brooklyn yesterday. Followers of the National League ball game were on the anxious seat for fear the injury might be serious enough to keep the dashing captain of the Giants out of the World's Series.

The loss of their second baseman's services on the eve of the big games would be a severe blow to the Giants' chances. "Larry" is not only one of their most valuable men in defence and with the stick, but his aggressiveness and pluck have frequently been found to go a great way toward bracing up his associates when they needed bracing.

COACHES DRIVE THE WILLIAMS ELEVEN

WILLIAMSTOWN, Oct. 4.—No matter did Coach Daly and Assistant Coach O'Neil show to the Williams squad yesterday, scrimmaging. Although two of the regulars did not get into the scrimmage, Captain Mitchell led the rest of his team against two separate eleven. The scrubs and the freshmen both went down before the attack of the first string men. Except for the backpedaling of the forward pass, the work was quite satisfactory.

COACHES DISSATISFIED

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 4.—The Yale varsity were given easier meat than the second team when they lined up against the Freshmen for the first time this year yesterday. They had little trouble in scoring three touchdowns, but the coaches were far from satisfied.

Captain Spaulding was not at the field at all. Walter Camp, Jr., was in the signal drill, but was not in the scrimmage. Warren was badly banged up in the scrimmage with the scrubs. Jerome, one of the substitute ends, had his nose flattened out. Bill Howe, another end, got a bloody nose today.

By BILL CARRIGAN,

Star Red Sox catcher, who will report the World's Series exclusively for the Boston AMERICAN.

We expect to beat the Giants because we can hit better than they can. That is a simple way of putting it, but it tells the story. There is no "inside" secret about that. The Red Sox have won consistently this year because they could bat and turn their hits into runs. They have had no hitting slumps. They are not erratic batters. They bat right along day after day about the same, and almost always bat well enough to beat the other fellow, no matter how good he is.

You have probably noticed that when the top of the list is not hitting at its best, the bottom of the list is doing the batting. Everybody takes a turn at it. Seldom this year have there been days when everybody "fell off." If it was not Hooper, Yerkes and Speaker, it was likely to be Lewis, Gardner and Stahl or Wagner and the batteries.

Wagner was one of the timely hitters on the team. He knows how to hit when hits are needed to win ball games. And one pitchers batted out many a game to the tune of nothing of the long, hard hits made by Hooper for man, the Red Sox are better batters than the Giants. They "get on" more frequently, and they manage to make the runs that win the games. I do not care to compare the teams man for man. The averages do that. It is command batting, and hitting at the right time, that counts.

Red Sox Are Stickers.

The Red Sox have a faculty of sticking to the job until the last man is out in the last inning, or, at least, until enough runs have been scored to win the ball game. They can wait patiently until they get what they want and then go out and get it.

The best example of this persistence and self-confidence that has won and will win games was shown in the series with the Athletics in Philadelphia last July. We all agreed that series would show which was the better team in every department of the game and which of the two teams would probably win the pennant. We had the lead then, and the only team we really worried about was the World's Champions of 1911. When we went into that series the Red Sox were sure that if they beat the Athletics Boston would win out in the end, and if the Athletics went on fairly even terms and drew even the Red Sox would have a hard row to hoe and would have to be favored by the "breaks" in the game to flag.

Won by Better Batting.

The Athletics seemed to have the same feeling and looked upon that series the same way we did. So the games were fought hard from start to finish. We won four out of the six. We did it mainly by doing the better batting, and that is what we rely upon to beat the Giants. There is no doubt that the Athletics were one of the best batting teams ever organized, and we beat them, fairly and squarely, at their own game.

In the last game of that series, the Athletics scored a five-run lead, and it looked as though it was the better team, and a long, hard season's fight ahead. But I never saw such a comeback. Such as the Red Sox made. They kept going up to the plate and trying their best until they finally connected.

Then we did something. When we once began to hit we never let up until we had beaten them. It is the winning habit.

We know that the World's Series will have the same result. We expect to go and play without regard to the score made by the other side. If, by any chance, the Giants get the lead we don't count any bad game lost until the last man is out in the last inning. You can depend on the Red Sox to put out a victory in nearly every game.

Boston will go into the World's Series just as if the team was playing any ordinary series in the pennant race. The Red Sox will play the games without being bothered by the fact that the World's Championship is at stake. So you may expect the boys to bat just as persistently and with just as much patience and self confidence as they have all season long.

As to Base Stealing.

The only point in which the figures of the season seem to favor the Giants over Boston is in base stealing. The Giants are credited with many more stolen bases than we ever had. I do not fear the Giants' base stealing, and I do not believe any of our team does. Base stealing is a secondary resort. As a rule it is wise to attempt stealing bases unless you have to. It is all very well with men out or when it is necessary to take desperate measures to pull a game out of the fire, but it is a much more certain way to win games to depend upon the work at bat, including hits and passes if you can get them, and not to depend upon the ability to make the other fellow lose them. Like upon attempting to steal bases just for the sake of trying to squeeze out a point nearer the plate.

The Giants had to steal more bases than we did to win their pennant. The Red Sox have some mighty clever men on the paths, just as well as the Giants have, but we won our games in a more certain way.

Hooper is fast, so is Speaker. Lewis is improved. Gardner is a good waiter. Stahl has stolen many sacks, and Wagner is one of the cleverest base runners there is in baseball.

LYNCH TO AWARD GAME.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4. The game between Chicago and Pittsburgh Wednesday will not be played over, but the winner will be decided by President Lynch of the National League. Catcher Cotter of Chicago batted out of his turn in the ninth inning. We protested. I scored the winning run with a scratch single as the Red Sox were batting. Umpire Klem refused to allow the protest until after the game, when Manager Chase, of Pittsburgh, protested the game.

Boston Catcher Tells of Strong, Consistent, Steady Stick Work of His Teammates.

IF DODGERS BEAT GIANTS--WELL--

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Marsh King the Brooklyn Superbas at Washington Park the Giants played in their usual form and won a ninth inning victory over the redoubtable Nap Rucker at the Polo Grounds. Nap lasted along, but they got to him in the ninth, pushing four hits for three runs in the last frame, giving the Giants a victory by a score of 4 to 3.

For the first time in several weeks the old lineup was back in the game and showed to great advantage. With Merkle behind the plate looking his best since last June, and trotting to splendid fashion the champions seemed like a new team.

Demaree started in the box for the Giants and was greeted in the first frame with a double and two singles, which netted a run. Crandall batted for him in the eighth and Dedeaux twirled the last half of the inning.

When Wilson inserted a timely single in the ninth in batting for Bedar, Terrell was called upon to finish the game. Larry Doyle was spiked and the game was delayed for a time, but the New York captain took to his task limping badly.

"To Keep Your Beauty You Must Cultivate Harmony," Says Miss Irene Timmons

MISS IRENE TIMMONS

By Margaret Hubbard Ayer

"I WOULD be incapable of enduring the strain of my work if I were not in complete harmony with my surroundings and with the rest of the company".

That is what Miss Irene Timmons, the leading woman and most popular member of a New York STOCK Company, said to me the other day when we were discussing the eternal question of good looks and good health and how a woman can retain them amidst the arduous life of "stock" work.

Miss Timmons is slight and almost frail looking. There is something quite childlike in her manner and only a pair of keen and intensely clear eyes suggest the latent possibilities of this actress who looks like an ingenue and plays the heroines in "Kreutzer Sonata," "The Girl of the Golden West" and the Mother in the "Witching Hour" with equal success.

"No woman can really accomplish her best work or express her individuality unless she is in harmony with those about her," said Miss Timmons. "Of course, she can't be beautiful if she lives in a constant state of discord, for there is nothing that wastes strength, vitality and so destroys youth and good looks as discord, while harmony develops beauty.

"We work very hard here—every one in 'stock' has to. A new play every week, with rehearsals every morning too per formances almost every day, and always costumes to get. Oh, if it weren't for the dressmaker! I have her with me almost all the time," sighed the young actress, "but I am very strong naturally and then I adore my work and my audience, and I think they are fond of me.

"The leading lady in a stock company gets a great deal of admiration and that helps one, doesn't it? But I don't believe in living on admiration, as so many do; it's rather exhausting never to have a moment to yourself."

And Miss Timmons told me some stories of the adoration of her matinee girls and matrees which would have turned a more practical little head than hers—stories of bouquets and anonymous presents and a little band of devotees who follow her about and won't even let their favorite actress shop in peace.

But we were wandering from our subject, so we got back to the question of beauty.

"Let me see," mused Miss Timmons, "simple food, plenty of sleep, drinks were no more of irritating and refined as very badly that I would scratch until they bled. My limbs were so bad my friends wouldn't be seated here I waited at all. I used Resinol Ointment and Soap, and, after now the itching is almost gone. The Soap I always use."

The Caprices of the Sun

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

I HAVE many times insisted upon the fact that the chief cause of the variability of the weather in successive seasons is to be sought, not upon the earth, but in the sun. The meteorological vagaries of the past few years seem clearly to bear out this hypothesis, and strength is lent to it by the recent investigations showing that variations occur in the output of radiation from the sun in periods of from a few days to several weeks or months. Occasionally the difference amounts to as much as five or six or even ten degrees. At times the sun seems to experience a kind of faintness, and the earth, depending upon the sun for its supply of surface heat, feels the consequences.

The past Summer, beginning early with a burst of unreasonable heat, changed suddenly in character, became cool and rainy, and enormous losses were experienced by farmers, more in Europe perhaps than in America, although the defect of solar radiation seems to have been noticed, more or less, everywhere. It is a significant fact that the sun is now in a minimum period of sportedness, and there seems to be no question that its condition in that respect is reflected in the general character of the weather.

But the phenomenon is a complicated one, and several minor periods appear to be superposed upon one another, rendering it difficult to disentangle the effects. A very interesting table has recently been published in Europe by Professor Brueckner which seems to show that the seasons undergo notable variations in a period of from thirty to thirty-five years, probably in consequence of changes which repent themselves in the sun.

What Several Centuries Show

Records extending back over several centuries reveal this peculiarity, but those beginning with the nineteenth century are the most convincing. Three periods of cold, wet Summers and an equal number of hot, dry ones have intervened. From 1808 to 1826 the Summers were chilly, with frequent inundations. The same from 1838 to 1850, and from 1871 to 1885. Between these periods were three other periods of hot Summers with droughts, viz: from 1821 to 1835, 1851 to 1870 and 1885 to 1900.

Taking the average, it appears that, as far as European records go, the total length of the swing is between thirty and thirty-five years, and each phase lasts about seventeen years. With the year 1900, a new period of cold and wet Summers began, with an occasional interruption, as last year, which does not arrest the general tendency. According to these figures, those of us who were born near the middle of the last century cannot expect to see a renewal of the genial seasons to which we were accustomed in our youth before 1916 or 1917.

The philosophic mind loves to look toward the future, however remote it may be. All the hopes of humanity are now concentrated upon the future development of the race. We talk of the marvelous effects that the science of eugenics—i. e., of human improvement—is to produce as the fruit of scientific research, and the imagination is stirred by the pictures drawn of the perfected men and women of coming centuries. But it must not be forgotten that everything depends upon the continuance of the earth in its present habitable and productive state, which, in its turn, depends upon the condition of the sun.

Astronomers have learned a great deal about variable stars; the heavens are full of them. Those whose variations are extreme, like the star Mira, probably represent a state toward which the sun is tending. He is not yet in a very serious condition of variability, but the phenomena of stars which have gone on much further than he has done in the process of decay show clearly to what he is approaching.

The Period of Universal Death

The time will come when the solar radiation will be reduced one-half, and then three-quarters, and finally be completely extinguished. In the meanwhile there will be violent changes, like those of a dying fire; sudden up-flamings, with intense, but brief, outpours of heat and light, followed immediately by a rapid loss of energy. The end will be the entire extinction of the sun, and then the earth will be buried in cold and darkness, the atmosphere will be solidified and descend upon the surface of the whole globe like a blanket of snow, and universal death will reign over this now beautiful planet.

Fortunately for us these changes are slow—at least we have reason to think they are slow. But, in reality, we know little about them, and they may unexpectedly reach critical stages, when rapid developments will take place. This is the reason why the studies of the sun, which are now being pursued by astronomers with a diligence never before shown, are of such universal interest.

A Novel Boa

THE Boa Hat is the very latest invention of the feather merchant and milliner, and it is likely to be more popular than either of them hoped for because it is vastly becoming. The big feather boa wound about the crown of a wide velvet hat and falling over its rim at one side, winds about the neck in regular boa fashion. It is very decorative, and combines all the good features of the Autumn millinery. The wide low feather trimming, the droop at the side and the collarette around the neck, which is necessary for the woman whose frocks and coats have flat turndown collars.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

AT THE WAILING PLACE

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

THE WAILING PLACE, which is always as crowded as a public well in a little town, had been thronged from early morning, and though the afternoon was waning, the crowds showed no signs of diminution.

Old men were there to wail of neglect, and women were there of all ages to wail of their hair coming out. Children turned their faces to the wall while they told of stern parents, and parents lifted up loud voices while they complained of undutiful children.

The long Summer, the heat that sapped energy and made business dull, lovers who were fickle, grapes that wouldn't jell, tight shoes, high prices and all the little pins that scratch caused a united wail it, go up that sounded like the cry of a banshee, a safe comparison to make for the reason that none of us knows what its cry is like.

Suddenly there appeared a spot so far up the road it seemed like a grain of dust. It grew, and grew as it came nearer, and lo,—the wailers saw that it was not a grain of dust, but Daysey Mayme Appleton!

"Make way for me!" she cried, scattering the dust as she flew. And they made way for her, falling back so that she had clear entry to the Wailing Place.

"I have a guest," she began, and then all the wails of the others ceased. They knew, all too well, that they had no sorrow as great as this.

"Her name," wailed Daysey Mayme, throwing back her head and beating her breast, "is Jane. She is my cousin Jane."

A low murmur from the others told of sympathetic understanding. They also had kin, and often the kin were guests.

"I spent all my Easter money taking her to Grand Opera," wailed the soloist, "and when I said, 'That's Caruso; isn't he divine?' she said, 'I don't think he is as good as the records.'

"I took her to the beach. She said she had a bathtub at home. I took her to the art gallery. She didn't see anything as fine as a landscape she had painted, and that sold for five dollars at a church fair.

"The rarest specimens in the aquarium reminded her of mustard pickles, and—the soba began to choke the soloist—"she had seen corset advertisements more interesting than the"——

Her voice now could be scarcely heard above the chorus of those who walled with her.

"She is going to stay three months longer!" she shrieked, and words were heard no more, for there burst from the throats of the others a wail of sympathy so shrill and so prolonged that no one's words could be told from another's.

Daysey Mayme had touched the popular chord!

Not What He Meant

IN China the law courts and methods of dealing with offenders are, to say the least of it, somewhat patriarchal.

The newly appointed crier certainly did not help to make proceedings clearer in a certain court in a remote district of that country.

The judge ordered him to summon a witness, by name Ah Song.

"Call for Ah Song!" he commanded the crier.

The crier looked puzzled for a moment. He glanced at the prisoner. Then at the crowd in the court. A smile broke over his features.

"Gentlemen," said he, "will any of you oblige His Worship with a selection from your repertoire?"

The Silver Lining — By Dorothy Dix

I HAVE received a letter which says:

"Will you kindly help a woman with an artistic temperament to see the bright side of a life that she is doomed to spend with a man who cares for nothing in the world but business. He is not interested in politics, religion or literature. He plays no games. He does not care for the theatre or opera. He reads nothing but the stock reports. He does not care for automobiling except to get more swiftly to his business. He does not even care for his children, but gives them anything they want to keep them from bothering him and taking up his valuable time. When he is at home, which isn't very often before 11 or 12 o'clock at night, he is absorbed in thinking over his business plans, or he cross and grouchy as a sore headed bear because he is exhausted, mentally and physically, by his labor.

"Literally I have no husband. I have a generous provider, but no companion, no chum, nobody to go out with me or to enjoy things with me.

"I know there is so much misery in the world, so much real suffering for the necessities of life, that I should not complain of my lot. There must be a bright side to my case, and I know if there is you will be able to see it. Will you kindly point it out to me?"

Of course there is a bright side to your lot, sister. Your cloud is literally silver lined, and what you want to do is to get a pick, and go mining for it.

There Are Worse

Believe me, there are worse husbands than a cash register, and the woman who is lucky enough to be married to a man who has the gift for making money, and the energy to do it, should sit down and contrast her lack with that of those wives who have to take in washing to support their husbands, or do-as-wells, who are born too tired to work.

The woman with a husband who is a good business man can, at least, respect him because he is able to hold his own in a world of men, because he has the intelligence to plan and scheme, and the grit and backbone to fight and achieve things. Would you trade that kind of a husband off for a poet, wishy-washy, helpless sort of creature, so blind he can never see opportunity until it has gotten past him, so incompetent he always fails at everything he undertakes, so weak he cannot stand alone, but has to be always helped by somebody else?

I know not, and before you quarrel with your cake just consider how hungry you would be if your husband was one of the men who could not provide you with even bread and butter, to say nothing of "frills" food.

It is, of course unnecessary to call your attention to your material possessions, and to say that the woman who is married to a man who can provide her with a luxurious home, with an automobile, with money for trips and theatre and opera and good clothes should be down on her knees, knocking her forehead on the ground and returning thanks for her good fortune. She has got the stuff to make happiness out of. She has got the means of entertaining herself, and if she doesn't have a jolly time it's her own fault.

Of course, you shrug your shoulders and say that houses and automobiles and parts gowns are but low and thrills and all of the balance of the romantic flub-dub that you thought that marriage was going to mean. Alas, sister, nobody is sentimental after they have been married six months, and there is never a thrill gets past the honeymoon. Then, when you settle down to the long pull of married life, it makes all the difference in the world whether you glide over it in a ninety-horsepower limousine, or have to hang a handcart yourself.

The Poet's Wife

Yet, who are married to a plain business man whose greatest heart interest is the rise and fall in the grocery trade, think how wonderful it must be to be the wife of some long haired poet, or dreamer, who would palpitate with you over a sunset, or delve deep with you into the psychology of the last problem novel. Kindly reflect, before you get green with envy, that Mrs. Poet doesn't have time to palpitate over anything but the cook stove, and that the burning subject of discussion in their household is how they are to get enough crumpled rose leaf money to settle the butcher's bill at the end of the month.

Also if you could look into the breast of Mrs. Poet you would find that she would like to trade off about a barrel of her husband's soulful thoughts for your husband's ability to make money.

Without doubt the woman whose husband neglects her for his business has just cause of complaint. It would be far better for the happiness of all concerned if men worked less and played more, if they gave their families fewer luxuries, and more of their society. Point lace over a woman's breast doesn't ease the ache of her lonely heart, nor does a string of pearls make up to her for never having his arms about her neck.

But it is easier to preach moderation in business than it is to practice it, for it is a strenuous race in which you must keep in the lead or else be trampled out of existence. But the wife of the man who is absorbed in making money has at least the consolation of knowing that her rival is a bodiless one, and that at the back of all her husband's seeming neglect the real motive that inspires all of his labor is his love for her, and his desire to lay the best of everything at her feet.

In reality the supreme test of love is whether a man is willing to work for a woman or not. Judged by that the check-book husband is ace high, and the wife who is married to such a man and is not happy, is a worthy successor to the Fairy Princess who was such a seeker after trouble that she delved under her forty mattresses of ease until she found a single

Household Hints

Any one who suffers from hot hands would do well to powder her gloves. It will make them easy to put on, and if the hands perspire it will keep them dry and save the gloves. When you take your gloves off blow into them, sprinkle a little powder and lay them flat on their backs. Soon you will discover that your gloves are wearing much longer and that they never look shabby or uncared for.

To wash a mackinaw dip the garment in soft cold water, then, with scrubbing brush and plain yellow soap, proceed to brush it all over. When the dirt is removed dip the cloak in several waters to get rid of suds, but be careful not to wring. Hang up to dry, not before the fire. Paint or grease spots can be removed by turpentine. Hot water should not be used.

A dusty carpet may be better cleansed by being rubbed over with warm water and household ammonia than by sweeping. By the latter process, the dust is only temporarily disturbed and settles again on the carpet.

The water in which onions have been boiled is excellent for cleaning gilt picture frames. It will not only remove specks and dirt, but brightens up the frames in a wonderful way. But it should not be used until quite cold.

If a tin of paint has to be left open, stir it thoroughly, in order to dissolve all the oil, then fill up with cold water. When the paint is needed for use pour off the water, and the paint will be found as fresh as when opened.

A simple way to remove the skin from a dried haddock is to hold it in front of the fire and gently pull the skin away, starting from the head downward, when the skin will come off without breaking the flesh.

HAIR STOPS FALLING, DANDRUFF DISAPPEARS--25 CENT "DANDERINE"

Save your Hair! Beautify it! Invigorate your Scalp! Danderine grows hair and we can prove it.

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or a loose or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you will actually see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine now will immediately double the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove to yourself tonight—now—that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

DRAKE'S PURE FOOD

TO PUT FLESH ON A THIN BODY

Recent Discovery of Eminent Specialist

Thousands of people suffer from excessive thinness who seemingly are powerless to put on a pound in weight in spite of the best they try. They feel perfectly well, eat heartily at the table, digest food, sleep soundly and are regarded as able to put flesh on their lean frames but with absolutely no result. The best authorities now agree that excessive thinness is due almost invariably to a constitutional defect. The intestines of the normal person when fed a fair, properly cooked meal does duty it is to separate the nourishing and flesh producing elements of food from the waste elements and to carry the former to the blood cells through which in turn they are carried to every portion of the body to build up firm flesh and tissue. This people lack a normal supply of the needful intestinal juice and the flesh producing elements of the food are not therefore properly digested to the blood but instead pass through the body along with the waste.

Recently medical men have found that certain drugs, properly combined, form a powerful artificial solution of the intestinal juice and that this result is accomplished when these drugs are given to people to digest their food and to gain in weight from 2 to 5 lbs. a week. The increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in health, clearer complexion and personnes, which nearly always accompanies increase in flesh. Indigestion, gas, headache disappears.

The prescription, recommended sometimes as dangerous, is simple, harmless and inexpensive and can fill it, 1 oz. Tincture of Cardiol, 4 oz. Fluid Extract of Cascara, 4 oz. Essence of Peptonoids and enough water to fill an 8 oz. bottle. One or two tablespoonfuls should be taken about 20 minutes before each meal. The prescription will last for a fortnight and should be filled when renewed into the intestines. Start all you need, but after your final check.

CAUTION: Although the above prescription is accomplishing the most startling permanent results in curing nervousness, indigestion and constipation, it should be used only, owing to its remarkable flesh growing properties, as directed by any one who does not desire to put on flesh.

M. G R writes

"This being Leap Year, I proposed to a young man* with whom I had been acquainted for a long time, and whom I dearly love. He accepted me and seemed to love me.

"Later, I found that my dearest girl friend had proposed to that same young man and he had accepted her also. I am not pretty or stylish, and my friend is both, but I love him in a way of which she is not capable at all. Do you think that he was joking with her, or with me?"

With both of you, my dear! What in your vision is a serious thing has probably become to him the rarest of jokes. If he accepted you, of course, he accepted the other girl. It might prove an embarrassment of riches if he regarded the proposals seriously, but he doesn't!

And so man will. When a woman asks a man to marry her, she steps out of her own province, and is very likely to be misjudged and misunderstood. She offers her heart and hand to a man. He becomes the hunted where every custom, right and tradition have made him the hunter.

Hunter and Hunted

If he went to the woods to kill a deer and the deer chased him for the purpose and desire of being killed hunting would become a huge joke.

Courtship, though a more delicate matter than going into the woods with a gun, alike loses its zest and its joy if the girl becomes the pursuer. It is a jump from the sacred to the profane. Designed as the rarest of all joys, it becomes the rarest of all jokes.

Women have argued since the world was young that they should have the privilege of proposal, and there is much to prove their contention.

In the first place, no man knows what is good for him. When he is very young he one expects wisdom, and the older he grows the less he displays. When he is old and needs a nurse to care for him, he picks out a wife who makes a good dummy on which to display pretty clothes.

Not one man in twenty has good marry ing sense. The women claim that if they could be the choosers there would be more happy marriages. That is a question time may settle, but the time is not now.

Surely, the writer of this letter knows that no one person can change an established order of things and expect anything but chaos to result.

Leap Year a Joke

The fact that it is Leap Year will make no change in human nature. Leap Year will never be recognized seriously so long as only the women regard it in that light. They may begin in January and propose till December, but so long as man regards the year as a joke, designed to placate the women, the proposals will receive less serious attention than an invitation to dine.

There is only one thing left for this girl to do: She must break the "engagement."

That, under the circumstances, will be easy. She can tell him she knows of his perjury, and ask for the return of her ring. I am taking it for granted that she observed all the little niceties of courtship, and gave him one.

Then, I beg, with the ring in her possession, she will wear it as a reminder of her folly. Perhaps she can feel that she must ask a man to marry her, let her rub the ring to invoke the memory of the humiliation her first proposal cost her.

When the right man comes along let him do the proposing. The men are very jealous of their rights, and the right of courtship is one they will never surrender.

If a girl wants to win a man, let her study his likes and dislikes. Let her give him flattery in just such amounts his nature craves, and administer it so delicately he doesn't know it is flattery.

Let her appeal to his superior wisdom in all things, and win him by tact and subtlety. A bold proposal of marriage is like a knock-down blow compared with the thousand other means nature has provided every woman for wisling the man she loves.

Mr Dresser—Your hat looks very well with that wing in it.

Mrs. Dresser—Yes, but it would look better with two wings in it.

Mr Dresser—Oh, that's merely a matter of a pinion.

GOLD DUST
makes dish-washing easy

The use of a little Gold Dust in your dish-water will make your dishes brighter, sweeter and cleaner than they ever can be without it. Unlike soap, Gold Dust does more than clean the surface. It goes deep after germs and hidden food particles and sterilizes everything it touches.

Gold Dust does all the hard part of the work without your assistance, because it begins to dissolve and clean the moment it touches the water.

When you have to wash dishes 1095 times a year, the Gold Dust method of saving half your time and half your labor means something.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large package ages. The large package means greater economy.

FOR the face he looked upon was serene, and there was no scruple in him; rather a confusion of unloosed passions fearful of barrier and yearning tumultuously for freedom. But, whatever his revolt, the secret revolt which makes no show in look or movement, he kept his ground and forced a smile of greeting. If her face was quiet, it was also lovely—too lovely, he felt, for a man to leave it, whatever might come of his lingering.

Nothing in all his life has ever affected him like it. For him there was no other woman in the past, the present or the future, and, realising this—taking to the full what her affection and her trust might be to him in those fearsome days to come, he so dreaded a rebuff—he, who had been the counsel of women and the admired of men ever since he could remember—that he failed to respond to her welcome and the simple congratulations she felt forced to repeat. He could neither speak the commonplace nor listen to it. This was his crucial hour. He must find support here, or yield hopelessly to the maelstrom in whose whirl he was caught.

She saw his excitement and faltered back a step—a move which she regretted the next minute for he took advantage of it to enter and close behind him the door which she would never have shut of her own accord. Then he spoke, abruptly, passionately, but in those golden tones that which no emotion could render other than alluring.

"I am an unhappy man, Miss Scott. I see that my presence here is not welcomed, yet am sure that it would be so if it were not for prejudice which your generous nature should be the first to cast aside in face of the strength and confidence of my brother Oswald. Doris, little Doris, I love you. I have loved you from the moment of our first meeting. Not to many men is it given to find his heart as late, and when he does, it is for his whole life; no second passion can follow it. I know that I am premature in saying this, that you are not prepared to hear such words from me and that it might be wiser for me to withhold them, but I must speak. Deeply soon, and I cannot go until I know whether there is the least hope that you will yet lend a light to my career or whether that career must burn itself to ashes at your feet. Oswald—my, dear me out—Oswald lives in his accounts; but I must have an active force—a tangible expectation—if I am to be the man I was in the Wall Street, robbly climbs me to you the importance of my past? I will not hasten anything: all I ask is some indulgence. Time will do the rest."

"Impossible," she murmured.

But that was a word for which he had no ear. He saw that she was moved, unexpectedly so; that while her eyes wandered restlessly at times towards the door, they came back to his with wonder, if not fascination, in his face, emboldening him so that he ventured at last to add:

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Too Plain and Homely

Mrs. Brown had advertised for a general servant, and received a huge number of replies to her advertisement. She made an appointment with Mary Smith.

Accordingly, she interviewed the applicant in her drawing room.

"Of course, remarked Mary, in a shrill voice, "I shouldn't be expected to clean stoves, or wash dishes, and I sha'n't be required to answer the door, or dust any of the rooms?"

"Most certainly not," answered Mrs B, in a pained voice. "I should never presume to ask our servant to do any such things. All I want is a servant to look at and I'm afraid you're much too plain for that. Good morning.

Up-to-the-Minute Jokes

Prince Arthur of Connaught's situation to the Englishmen "who could almost tell when 'God Save the King' was being played and when it was not," recalls another story.

Lord North neither appreciated music nor tried to. On one occasion George III tried to coax him to a concert of ancient music. "Your brother the Bishop never misses them," said the king.

"Sir," replied North, "were I as deaf as my brother the Bishop, I would never miss them either."

Not long ago a stock of crockery was sold at auction, and Mrs. Wilson attended the sale. When she returned her face was radiant with joy.

"I've got John Wilson's soul," she announced.

"You must join the cremation society," were the first words she said to her husband.

Mrs W—I've bought such a lovely vase to hold your ashes! You have no idea how it will set off the mantelpiece.

Safest Antiseptic for Women to Use

In every household you will find among the toilet necessities some sort of a germicide, in the form of either a tablet, solution or powder. Many of these antiseptic preparations contain poisons, and unless the greatest care is used much harm is done to the persons using them.

The value of an absolutely harmless antiseptic powder, as compared with a poisonous tablet or solution, is apparent to everyone, and that is one reason why physicians everywhere are strongly recommending the use of Tyree's Antiseptic Powder. Tyree's Antiseptic Powder should commend itself, therefore, to every household. Unequalled as a douche. A 25-cent package makes two gallons of standard solution. Sold by druggists everywhere. Ask your doctor or send for booklet. A. S. Tyree, Chemist, Washington, D. C.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

THERE was a other funny man came up to the house last nite, Pa called him the King of the Air he said that the man's name was Joe Stevenson, & he said that Mister Stevenson was the greatest master of the empyrean that ever sailed over a fleecy cloud. You ought to watch him fly, said Pa. He can go higher than any of them. He can go so high, Pa said, that he looks like a speck.

How interesting, said Ma. Can't you fly around the parlor a little for us, Mister Stevenson? I think it wud be safer for you to fly in here, because if you fell the ceiling & dropped you wudden't be dropping far. My husband almost hits the ceiling lots of times, & while he is a nice sweet girls hurt there is a special providence, Ma said that watches over children & my husband.

I am very sorry that I can't fly in here, and Pa's friend, You see, the acoustic properties of the room will not permit me to fly very high. Mrs husband asked me to cum up here tonite to tell about the time that I flew over the Andes.

How interesting, said Ma. did you really, Mister Stevenson, & the result [illegible] Pa said he had a very interesting time, & was on the way to [illegible] when [illegible]

Both Boston and N. Y. Markets Open Strong and With Material Advances

STATE STREET, Oct. 4.—The Boston stock market, as well as the Wall Street exchange and the Continental bourses, opened with a general buoyant feeling all round, the American marts reflecting to a large extent the idea prevailing in Europe that the Balkan war cloud had been dispelled.

Canadian Pacific, which is one of the most prominent of the international issues, was up 1½ in London and 2 points in New York. Atchison was also a London feature, with a jump of 1¼ at 2 p. m.

Both the New York and the Boston markets were strong, with considerable advances.

Reports that the dividend of Canadian Pacific will be increased at the next meeting of the board caused that issue to open 2 points higher in New York. This was the biggest initial gain recorded, although advances were made throughout the list.

The market was strong, being influenced to a large extent by private cabled advices that the Balkan situation had begun to clear and that the possibility of war was less likely.

Among the gains in Wall Street were, Steel common ⅝, St. Louis & Southwestern ½, Amalgamated ⅝, Erie 1st preferred ½, Missouri Pacific ⅝, Lehigh Valley ½, Union Pacific ⅜, Reading ¼, R. & O. and Pennsylvania ⅛.

Americans Up in London.

Americans in London were mostly higher. Canadian Pacific spurted to 286¾, an advance of 1¾; Atchison was up 1¼ there. Sentiment was cheerful and the higher movement was growing in the belief that the concentrated weight of Russian and Austrian diplomacy will preclude any real disturbance in the Balkans.

The war markets were steady in Boston, New York and London.

There was a fair demand for rail money; Steel 5 per cent., others ½ per cent.

Six Hundred People? Pooh! What Do Six Hundred People Amount To?

You Hear These Words, Almost, in the Reported Attitude of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company Toward the Families Who Settled at Hull for the Summer on the Company's Promise of a Steamboat Service Up to the First Day of November. The N. B. S. Company Is About to Eat Its Promise, Leaving Summer Residents With Beach Houses on Their Hands

Somewhere in this State there ought to be LAW ENOUGH and POWER ENOUGH to take the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company by the scruff of the neck and SHAKE THE HOGGISHNESS OUT OF IT.

The Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company has just BOLDLY announced to six hundred Summer residents of the town of Hull that its steamboat service between Hull and Boston will be discontinued ON AND AFTER NEXT MONDAY.

Thereby the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company EATS ITS OWN WORDS.

Thereby the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company BREAKS ITS PUBLISHED PROMISE TO THE PEOPLE.

Thereby the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company writes itself down as a corporation which has OBTAINED MONEY BY FALSE PRETENCE.

TIME TABLES of this steamboat company announced MONTHS AGO that the service would be IN OPERATION UNTIL THE FIRST DAY OF NOVEMBER.

HUNDREDS took this announcement as a PLEDGE. Many gave up their houses in town and engaged places at Hull. They may have had to take these places on LONGER RENTAL-PERIODS than they would have considered if they knew what was in the mind of the steamboat company. The steamboat company CARES NOTHING ABOUT THAT.

The REASON advanced by this steamboat company for putting the shutters up one month earlier is the GOOD OLD REASON that it has been UNABLE TO SECURE LIFEBOATS. "We are not yet in a position," says the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company, "to comply with the United States regulations." There is a shortage in the supply of lifeboats, it seems.

Instead of running three boats during the month of October the Nantasket company can well reduce its service to ONE boat. All the available lifeboats can be placed upon this ONE STEAMBOAT.

This one steamboat could make TWO MORNING TRIPS and TWO EVENING TRIPS daily DURING OCTOBER.

In this way the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company can keep what APPEARED to be a sincere and honest PROMISE TO THE PEOPLE.

The directors of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company are E. L. Ripley, Albert Stone and Charles B. Barnes.

It MAY be that an under-official of the Nantasket company, knowing that the season of RICH profits is at an end, seeks to curry favor with these directors by cutting out the comparatively poor month.

If this should be the case, the responsible under-official has been RECKONING WITHOUT THE PUBLIC.

Messrs. Ripley, Stone and Barnes will realize this, now that their attention has been brought to the facts, and no doubt they will see to it that steps are taken to KEEP THE COMPANY'S PLEDGE.

That pledge, or promise, was that the boats WOULD REMAIN IN SERVICE UNTIL THE FIRST DAY OF NOVEMBER.

The Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company MUST KEEP THIS PROMISE.

FAILING that, the REPRESENTATIVES of the people must take the big stick of LAW and AUTHORITY and make the Nantasket company STEP LIVELY.

"Collier's" and Standard Oil

Many persons profess surprise that Collier's Weekly took up the cudgels in behalf of the Standard Oil Company in the matter of the famous letters. It is not quite clear why Collier's should undertake to answer when the writers of the letters, and the recipients of the letters, did not try to answer but simply confessed.

Some of the letters already published, and we are informed several other letters among the two or three hundred that yet remain to be published, show that the Standard Oil Company was extremely generous with checks, subscribing in bulk for periodicals and weeklies that were willing either to defend the Standard Oil Company or to attack the enemies of the Standard Oil Company.

We know, of course, that Collier's Weekly is sadly in need of subscribers, since very few people are willing to take it except as a gift when thrown in with other publications. But we have believed hitherto that Collier's could not be bought.

If anyone in the Standard Oil Company did arrange the "attack" or "defense"—whatever it may be called—in the current issue, it is obvious that it was done in the absence of Mr. Archbold in Europe, because, while Mr. Archbold's company has been convicted of all sorts of crimes, he has never been accused of stupidity. And the Collier's article, either as an attack or as a defense, was exceedingly stupid.

If the Standard Oil Company did procure it, it is one of the very rare cases where the Standard Oil Company paid for something and got nothing.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

TRUE JOURNALISM

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I desire to add my "Amen" to the letters praising your paper for its movement in journalism. Today it stands ahead of all other papers. It is true journalism to state the facts and let people judge for themselves. There is not another paper doing this as you are. Good-by to the old partisan, ignorant, prejudiced, covetous, grafting, selfish press; they are a stench to the nostrils of intelligent, progressive men. No wonder you stand at the head in circulation. Let nothing swerve you from your present principles. The greatest article ever written on the tariff was the one by Mr. Hearst. It ought to be circulated all over the United States to enlighten and guide the people at the coming Presidential election.

J. M.

THE ELECTRICAL SHOW

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—As a reader of the AMERICAN let me congratulate you on your editorial relative to the Boston Electrical Show. To me it is the greatest of all the editorials you have published. I would like to shake hands with the man who wrote it.

Electricity is the greatest of all sciences, and every man should go to Boston with an inquiring mind, for he will be learning or trying to learn the greatest of all mysteries.

When will they find the end of its usefulness?

Hail to the founders of electricity, and hail to you and all men who can write articles such as yours.

WINDMILLS VS. COAL

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Holland many years ago lost several thousand of her people by flood. Today in safety she meets tide and storm. Windmills form her power and her protection.

Today the storm of high coal prices is striking us, and today is the time for us to combine windmills with storage batteries. It is self-evident that in the future this combination will give us heat, light and power.

One Dollar will be paid for every letter contributed by Boston AMERICAN readers, and used in the AMERICAN, containing ideas helpful to those WOMEN WHO WISH TO EARN MONEY AT HOME. This department is organized to help women help themselves. It will suggest opportunities for money-making and will help those who wish to develop the ideas they are now using in their homes for increasing their incomes. Won't you please tell me what you are doing and why you are doing it, so that we may be of service to some woman who is struggling in the dark and who needs our help? LET us talk for a moment about heroes, though, not the heroes for whom medals are struck off; not the heroes whose deeds are heralded with heavy headlines; not the heroes who startle our attention with the spectacular.

Let us talk about those other, though none the less real heroes—the quiet, patient, unheralded, unknown HEROES OF THE HOMES. Let us talk about those who are fighting against the greatest enemies of the human race, the enemies that daily threaten the lives of millions—hunger and thirst and cold and disease.

To live, to perpetuate our kind, to have health and strength, we are commanded to eat nourishing food, take proper exercise, wear comfortable clothing, and protect ourselves from the elements.

But money is needed for these things. And money is not easy to get.

Money, they tell us, may be honorably secured in two ways: We may receive it as a voluntary gift or WE MAY EARN IT.

But to earn it, when one is untrained, when one is handicapped by disease, by young children, by weakness is work for heroes.

And the world is filled with these heroes—men and women who are daily facing hunger and thirst and disease in order that they may obey the laws of nature and the laws of the land.

They are struggling, some of them, against heartbreaking odds, to earn the pittance they need to sustain their lives and the lives of their children.

But why should one editorialize when the voice of a heroine may be heard. Let us offer you the courageous words of Mrs. F. J. Smith of No. 125 Rindge avenue, North Cambridge. Her letter follows:

I saw in the AMERICAN that you are willing to help needy people to make a living. I need help very much.

I have three small children, all girls, the eldest four years old and the youngest eight months. I have to support them myself, and I have nothing to do just now. I have been looking and trying to get something to do, but it is hard to earn enough money to support us all.

I have often thought that if I could start a little store or lunch room somewhere in North Cambridge I could make a living for my family. As they are too small to leave all the time with my mother, I would have tried something like that long ago, but I have never had any money with which to make a start.

I have had experience in that business and I could get along all right if I had a start. There is a little store to let where I live and if I had the money I would take it. I think a store or lunch room would be best, because I could keep my children with me more, and if I found a place with a room or two I could have them and take care of them myself.

I know a lot of people in North Cambridge and feel sure of a good trade. If you think of anything else that would be better, I would be very thankful, as I will have to do something.

It is for women like this that the AMERICAN is seeking help—seeking it for them as a small reward for the splendid heroism they show.

To help these women earn money at home, to enable them to feed and clothe their children, to assist them to send these children to school, where they will be trained to take care of themselves and serve their neighbors, to open to them the doors of opportunity—this is the mission of the AMERICAN'S department, "How Women Can Make Money at Home."

Teaching Etiquette.

A woman lives in a neighborhood where there are a great many children who know little about etiquette. She started a class of six girls. In five weeks she had eighteen girls, they meet once a week and are taught how to act at all times.

They come for lunch so as to be taught table manners. Each girl has her time to wait on the table, so she will know just how everything should be served. Each member pays 55 cents, 10 cents of which goes toward paying for the lunch.

The girls ask questions about different forms. Beside learning a good deal, they have a good time.

Making Silk Caps.

I find making little silk caps to wear while traveling a profitable employment. I make an eighteen inch circle out of silk, trimmed in lace or ribbon. Silk is good for the hair.

School Lunches.

The pupils of a school had only thirty minutes for luncheon, too short a time in which to go home. A woman prepared boxes holding two sandwiches, a piece of home made cake, some fruit, and an after dinner mint patty.

These lunches were prepared about 10 o'clock and at noon she brought them to the school, where she sold them at 10 cents each. Some days she netted $6 or $7.

Raising Fine Kittens.

A widow with three children, who owns her own home and garden, earns her income from the sale of fancy thoroughbred kittens which she raises. Although she lives in a small town where the people do not spend money for pets, she is in communication with dealers in cities all over the United States and ships her kittens on orders and gets fancy prices for them.

The light work of caring for these pets is a pleasure. It could be done in the city, even in a flat. Excellent prices could be gotten by selling directly to customers. A Summer resort would be a good field for this work. Visit the verandas, your wares in a basket, a pedigree for each one, and you could soon count your profits in three figures.

The Trouble with Eugenics

By CHESTER FIRKINS

FROM tender years to tough ones I was taught
To gaze into past ages for my joy.
The fambly tree (which grandmother had bought)
Gave me its cordial umbrage as a boy.
I climbed it from its rotten Roman roots,
Through mediaeval limbs with vellum leaves,
Up to the high but shaky modern shoots
Where I myself stood kin to kings and thieves.

I wasn't much. I hadn't any coin,
Nor brains, nor sense, nor willingness to work;
But since one sire had battled on the Boyne
And one at Armageddon, I could shirk.
I was a member of the Sons of Guns,
And Doctor of Ancestral Vanity.
Oh, life was bright as Saturn's seven suns
Until Eugenics changed the world for me.

The poor old world that had been going 'round
For fifty aeons boasting of its dads
Now spurned the best bones underneath the ground
And pinned its pride to unborn girls and lads.
Clean out of fashion went the relic tomb,
The trophies atrophied, the fames of name;
The fambly heroes got a second doom
When babes-to-be became the pop'lar game.

I who once traced my very sideburns back
To Persian potes and potentates, must now
Confine my boasts to what my grandson Jack
Shall be race-cultivated for, and how!
I who could rest on laurels of the grave
Now have earth's troubles all put up to me.
Ancestors may be pleasant things to have,
But, gosh! they're gloomy things to have to BE.
